U. S. TROOPS IN TRIESTE
By MAJ. GEN. BRYANT E. MOORE
Commanding U. S. Troops in Trieste

THE 5,000 American troops in the Free Territory of Trieste were provided for in the Treaty with Italy, which was signed on the 10th of February, 1947, and ratified on the 15th of September. It provided that in the new Free Territory of Trieste an international garrison of 5,000 American troops, 5,000 British troops, and 5,000 Yugoslav troops should remain until 90 days after the Governor took office, unless he indicated to the Security Council of the United Nations that he would need these troops for a longer period. The Treaty provided, in addition, that until the Governor was appointed, Military Government in the Free Territory of Trieste should obtain in the respective military zones thereof. This is the situation today. No Governor has as yet been appointed. The Free Territory of Trieste is divided into a US/UK Zone and a Yugoslav Zone; in the one there are 5,000 American and 5,000 English troops; in the other there are 5,000 Yugoslav troops. The Zones are sharply de-marked and communication and passage between the two Zones are regulated by agreements between the two Zone Commanders. The English Commander, Maj. Gen. T. S. Airey, C.B., C.B.E., is, by arrangement between the two Governments concerned, the over-all Commander of the US/UK Zone.

Gen. Moore

The 5,000 American garrison in the Free Territory of Trieste was taken from the 88th Division, which, since October of 1945, had had the job of holding the Morgan Line in conjunction with British troops. This line was held by the Anglo-American troops on the one side and by the Yugoslav troops on the other, until the Territory was finally turned over to the Italians and the Yugoslavs on the 15th of September 1947, in accordance with the provisions of the new Treaty. An attempt was made to select the higher type of soldiers for duty in the new International Force of Trieste, as it was felt that the obligation upon these officers and men was likely to be high.

The slight turmoils incident to the establishment of the US/UK Zone of the Free Territory of Trieste were soon terminated, and the US/UK garrison settled down to its work. That work involves maintaining the frontier of this tiny state, manning OP's, patrolling the area constantly day and night, and seeing to the security and tranquility of the border. The Trieste United States Troops (TRUST) is organized into a regiment of Infantry, re-inforced with a Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop and a Company of Medium Tanks; there is an Engineer Company, a Signal Company, an MP Com-

USAF Seeks Separate
Court Martial System

The U. S. Air Force this week asked Congress to give it legislative authority to set up its own system of courts martial with an Air Judge Advocate General.

"The purpose of the proposed bill," Secretary of the Air Force Symington informed Congress, "is to grant authority to the U. S. Air Force, similar to that of the U. S. Army and the U. S. Navy, for the administration of military justice over its own personnel."

The submission of this legislation indicates that the Air Force has satisfied itself as to the Constitutionality of any courts martial it might conduct. The fifth amendment to the Constitution provides that "no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger."

It was to settle the Constitutional status of the new separate Air Force that Representative Claude L. Blakewell (R-Mo.), has proposed an amendment to the Constitution making it clear that the President is commander in chief of the Air Force (as well as the Army and Navy) and that Congress has the power to provide and maintain, and to make rules for, the Air Force (as well as to "raise and support Armies" and to "maintain a Navy").

Representative Blakewell stated this week that the Department of the Air Force has informed him that it "does not see the need" for such a Constitutional Amendment, but suggested that the Constitution might be amended to make the President Commander in Chief of the "Armed Forces" instead of merely Army and Navy. Mr. Blakewell approved the suggestion and said that he will press the change before the House Judiciary committee.

Explaining his proposed bill, Air Secretary Symington wrote to the Speaker of the House as follows:

"The legislative proposal specifically provides that the Articles of War shall be of equal force and effect in respect to the U. S. Air Force as they presently apply to the U. S. Army, and that all references therein, or in any other laws relating to the administration of military justice, where they refer to the Secretary of War, the Judge Advocate General, or the Judge Advocate General's Department, shall also be construed as referring to, relating to, or as vesting like authority, responsibility or functions of the corresponding officer or officers of the Department of the Air Force. For the two-year transfer period prescribed by Section 208(e) of the National Security Act of 1947 (Public Law 253, 80th Congress), personnel of the Army under the command and authority of the Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force, are made subject to the jurisdiction thus conferred upon the Department of the Air Force. A general savings clause is also incorporated so as to insure that appropriate action may be taken by either the Department of the Army or Department of the Air Force in cases arising prior to enactment of this legislative measure."

"The National Security Act of 1947, establishing the Department of the Air Force and the U. S. Air Force, provided for the transfer from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force of such functions and activities as are deemed appropriate or necessary by the Secretary of Defense. Accordingly, it has been agreed between the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the

New DCNO for Operations

Rear Adm. Arthur Dewey Struble, USN, was ordered to duty this week as Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Operations, succeeding Vice Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, USN, who became Commander of Naval Forces, Mediterranean, early last month.

Admiral Struble, who has been Commander of Amphibious Forces, Pacific Fleet, since June 1946, relieves Rear Adm. Charles W. Styer, USN, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Operations, who has been acting as Deputy Chief since Admiral Sherman's departure.

New Set-Up is Detailed
By Army Department

A detailed outline of the new organization of the Department of the Army embodying post-war changes as well as the modifications brought about by the separation of the Air Force was promulgated this week.

Embodied in the "Organization of the Department of the Army" (Circular No. 64) is the newly established Office of the Army Comptroller, the new Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, the change of the old G-4 Section of the General Staff from the "Service, Supply and Procurement Division" to the office of the "Director of Logistics," who will handle all service, supply, and research and development matters.

Also defined is the "Headquarters, Department of the Army," used collectively to refer to the office of the Secretary of the Army and his Assistants, the office of the Chief of Staff and the divisions of General and Special Staffs, and the office of the heads of the Administrative and Technical Services.

The new Circular provides that the "Chief of Staff has command of all components of the Army of the United States and of the operating forces comprising the army areas. He also commands the Army component of overseas commands, and the related supply and service establishments of the Army, and is responsible to the Secretary of the Army for their use in war and plans and preparations for their readiness for war."

The new document is the most comprehensive published in some years and doubtless will be the basis for continuing studies looking toward the eventual rewriting of the National Defense Act, many provisions of which were made temporarily inoperative, and many changes in its basic policies were made temporarily effective, under war legislation and emergency executive orders.

Under the terms of the National Security Act of 1947, the Secretary of Defense is given the power to continue in force for two years such emergency organizational authority as might otherwise have expired. Under this provision the Department may continue to operate under temporary grants of authority, without reverting to all the requirements of the old National Defense Act, until July of 1949. Prior to that time, however, it is expected that the Army will have completed its recommendations for the rewriting of the Defense Act and presented them to Congress for enactment.

The new Circular provides:

1. General.

a. The War Department and the Army were reorganized 11 June 1946, by authority of Executive Order 9722, 13 May 1946, which amended Executive Order 9082, dated 28 February 1942. The War Department was redesignated as the Department of the Army in accordance with sections 205 (a) and 310 (b) of the National Security Act of 1947 (Public Law 253—80th Cong.; Bul. 11, WD, 1947).

b. This circular is effective upon the date of publication. Appropriate agencies of the Department of the Army will take action to transfer functions, duties, and responsibilities as outlined in this circular and affecting the Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, so as to complete their transfer within 90 days of the date of publication.

c. This circular sets forth the organization of the Department of the Army. It does not change present procedures or policies, and does not change existing relationships be-

Jacksonville Florida Times-Union—"Forrestal... is trying to save the United States from that vicious thing called 'branch consciousness,' which has been a perpetual drawback to the efficiency of our military and naval establishments in all wars."

Columbus Dispatch—"Let them (the Armed Forces) show the public that they are at least doing their duty by erasing their childish rivalries, pooling their talents and forces, and planning for truly integrated effort in the defense of the nation."

New York Times—"... increasingly anxious reports of all three of the armed services of lagging recruitment drives, the sober warnings of two commissions that we are lagging behind the minimum requirements of national security in the vital matter of air power, all must bring realization to both Congress and the people that we had better stop talking about security and start doing something about it."

Washington Star—"Defense Secretary Forrestal's determination to effect without further delay a definite interservice understanding as to the roles of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force in a future war is timely."

New York Mirror—"The armed forces are bickering at the top levels over the assignments to be carried out by the three services if war should come."

Expansion of Defense Forces

Now is the time to bring our armed strength to 1,734,000 men if we are to avoid the risk of a war under circumstances which may be disastrous for us and for our friends throughout the world, Secretary of Defense Forrestal told the Senate Armed Services Committee 25 March.

The Secretary's declaration climaxed a week in which administrative and legislative groups have focused attention on the problems of national defense with an intensity that allowed the tax reduction bill scant front page space in the press of the nation.

Appearing before the Committee, currently holding hearings on UMT, and at the same time considering a revival of selective service, Mr. Forrestal said he spoke of "a balanced strength in manpower—on the ground, on the sea, in the air—and how we believe that strength should be attained."

This balanced strength is a resolution of the needs of the Air Force, the Army, and the Navy, he said.

Mr. Forrestal recommended the authorized strength of the Army be advanced from 542,000 to 782,000; the Navy from 397,000 to 490,000; the Marine Corps from 81,000 to 124,000, and the Air Force from 364,500 to 400,000.

These goals can be reached through a two-part program which he classed as short-term and long-term, he said.

The short-term program looks to the immediate strengthening of our Regular Forces and, he declared, can be accomplished only through a Selective Service law. The long-term program can be accomplished, without inordinate cost, only through Universal Military Training, he said.

Immediate needs of building up the Regular Forces to a "somewhat increased" strength, about one-sixth of what we had in service in World War II, can be met with the short-term program, he asserted, continuing that when the immediate needs have been met and the long-term (UMT) program is adequately functioning, we should be able in a more peaceful world to curtail or eliminate the short-term (Selective Service) program. Our Air Force must be strong, capable of striking sustained blows far beyond the peripheral bases which we now hold; it must be capable of the air defense of our homeland and capable of seeking out and destroying an enemy that might impose war, he declared.

Of the Ground Force, Mr. Forrestal said it will be needed to protect our air bases from hostile attack, which it takes more than airplanes to resist. And it would be needed to seize and hold more distant bases—should the attack fall upon us—in order to take the war to the enemy and not suffer its ravages here in America.

Continuing his statement of our needs, the Secretary said we need a Navy capable of defending the necessary sea lanes of the world from submarine attack, of developing anti-submarine warfare, of insuring the sea transportation of our manpower and our logistical supplies and equipment to distant points, and of assisting both attack and defense through air-sea power and amphibious operations.

Cost of the short-term program was estimated by Mr. Forrestal at $3 billion in cash, and contract authorizations over and above authorizations which have already been requested. The details of the $3 billion budget request will soon be submitted to Congress he said, giving the principal items as follows:

Aircraft procurement, research and development for the Air Force and Naval aviation, $775,000,000.

Military personnel costs, "about" $700,000,000.

The balance for other necessary items of procurement, support, maintenance and operation of the three services.

He did not give any overall cost of the long-term part of the program, but said that a budget already submitted to the Congress makes provision for an appropriation of $500,000,000 and an expenditure of $400,000,000 for the initial steps which UMT will require.

Secretary of the Army Royall, who followed Mr. Forrestal, declared we must have an Army of such size that, if war should come, we can defend our nation against a surprise attack and take the first important initial steps in an offense that would keep the battleground away from our shores.

"And," he emphasized, "we must have an Army that can reduce the probability of war by convincing any possible enemy that we have these potentialities of defense and offense."

The principal initial offensive weapon of any present or future war will be air power, and the principal defensive weapons will be anti-aircraft, interceptive air power, anti-submarine defense, and means of repelling airborne or submarine forces, and of protecting our atomic and other vital installations and—as far as possible—our cities against sabotage, and of preserving order in the event of an attack against them, he continued.

Mr. Royall said we should "promptly" make certain that we have undisputed air superiority in the world, just as it is important that we retain our present undisputed sea superiority.

We should have as soon as possible planes of such speed and armament—and in sufficient numbers—that in the event of a war in the years ahead we could launch from our own shores effective—and sufficiently frequent—roundtrip attacks on any enemy points in the world which military strategy dictates.

After detailed explanation of our strategic air bases and their distance from possible points of attack, Secretary Royall moved on to other purposes for which we need a larger Army than we have today. These he gave as an anti-aircraft defense, other defenses to meet surprise attacks, defense of vital installations and personnel to man the lines of supply.

Of the two-part program described by the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Royall said that in recognition of the fact that UMT cannot produce additional National Guard or Reserves or other trained troops in the immediate future, immediate enactment of the Selective Service Act is essential at this time.

General Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the Army, gave the Committee details of deployment of our present Army and pointed out that approximately 30 per cent of the present total personnel is devoted to the Air Force and administrative functions.

The proposed increase which is being presented to the Congress as an urgent requirement of the Army is designed primarily to build a mobile striking force of effective power and strength, he said.

This striking force is the minimum Army element of the Armed Forces team which can lend the essential weight to the voice of the United States in world affairs, he declared, adding that Selective Service was the quickest way to achieve the goal at this time.

Of UMT, General Bradley said that it was interdependent with the proposed draft and would serve to give the nation a reserve of trained manpower for any future contingency and at the same time give notice to the aggressor nations that we are at all times prepared to defend ourselves and our ideals.

Summarizing, the Chief of Staff said the program—Selective Service and UMT—would create a modern, mobile striking force; provide a strong reserve; a modicum of security for our vital installations; service support for the Air Force, the Army and a portion of the Navy; and, efficient, highly trained professionals for a structure on which we can expand the technical and complex Army of tomorrow in the event of an all-out mobilization.

In quick succession, Secretary of the Air Force Symington, and Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, followed the Army group, supporting Defense Secretary Forrestal's insistence on the urgency for action at this time.

Mr. Symington declared that 70 combat groups are necessary despite the fact that we now have bombers capable of striking Russia on a one-way mission. He described our present 50 groups as "a nucleus for an Air Force in being."

General Carl Spaatz, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, supported Mr. Symington's assertions in detail, and was positive in his declaration that 70 combat groups are absolutely essential to minimum security.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan testified that alien submarines had been sighted off United States shores. He did not positively identify the nationality of the undersea craft other than to say that they were "not of nations west of the Iron Curtain."

The Russians have more than 250 operating submarines on hand, he said, pointing out that this was five times the number that Germany had at the beginning of World War II.

"And," he continued, "Germany almost won the war by submarine raids on Allied shipping."

Referring directly to Russia, Mr. Sullivan said the Soviets have the latest type submarines, designed from blue prints taken from the Germans. In addition, the Reds have captured and are holding a number of German technicians, he declared, adding Russia can build more submarines on short notice.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, dealt more with the Navy's plans for use of its portion of the proposed increased appropriation. He said, it would mainly be used to fill the complements of ships already in active commission, to boost their steaming hours, to add attack carrier air groups, anti-submarine groups and Marine support squadrons.

General J. Lawton Collins, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, testified that UMT would fill up the National Guard, "now poorly trained," and bolster the Reserves which, he said, are in worse shape than all other components of the Armed Forces.

At the end of the day, Secretary Forrestal returned to the stand and told the Committee it was quite possible that he would be back "next year" asking for the greater number (70) of air groups the Air Force had asked for this time "in vain."

Joint Chiefs of Staff

In the course of this week's hearings on National Defense, Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.) made it a point to ask each of the ranking witnesses whether he was satisfied with the results of the conference of the Joint Chiefs of Staff held with Secretary of Defense Forrestal at Key West, Fla.

Each in turn affirmed his approval of the outcome, Secretary Symington adding that his conclusion was based on what General Spaatz had reported to him, but adding that he desires to see the record of the meeting.

Col. Garrison Heads 11th AF Staff

Col. Flint Garrison, jr., has been appointed Chief of Staff, 11th AF, with Headquarters at Harrisburg, Pa. For the past year he has been Deputy Chief of Staff of the 11th.

Gen. Gavin to Fifth Army

Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin will join the Fifth Army, with headquarters at Chicago, Ill., as Chief of Staff on 29 March.

Reserve Legislation

Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, Executive Director of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, asserted that an alert, highly trained, revitalized Reserve Force of one-million men will spring into being through one more noncontroversial legislative step by the Congress.

The President on 25 March signed the first of two companion measures designed to bolster the Reserves, now largely a "paper force." The second has passed the House and awaits action by the Senate. President Truman already has indicated he will approve both measures.

The first measure which became law this week provides for training pay for all civilian components.

The pending bill establishes a retirement program for Reservists who engage in continued training and active duty with the regular forces over a period of years.

"The ROA has been fighting for this 'incentive' legislation for years," General Evans said. "The final passage of the first of these bills, and the virtual assurance that the second will pass, is the result of the work during these years of a handful of far-sighted Congress members whose numbers have continued to grow until they constituted a majority."

The Training Pay Bill which passed both houses of Congress without a single negative vote, General Evans pointed out, provides a nominal proportionate pay scale for training time put in by civilian component officers and men. The new law, in effect, merely equalizes for all services this training pay; such a scale previously had been in effect for the Navy and National Guard.

The Retirement legislation, it was pointed out, provides a system under which civilian component officers and men upon reaching the age of 60 may be placed on the retired list with pay commensurate with the amount of service. For each year of active duty with the regulars, a reservist will receive retirement benefits amounting to two and one-half per cent of the base pay and longevity. For each year of participation in the Reserve training program, one-half of one per cent of the base pay and longevity will be added.

Retain Temporary Ranks

The increases in personnel strength of the Armed Forces, recommended to Congress this week by Secretary Forrestal would obviate the necessity of further reductions in temporary grades. Even under current conditions, unless an actual reduction in strength should be ordered, there is little likelihood of "breaking" many officers to lower grades.

In view of the failure to get started on pay legislation in this Congress, it is considered particularly important that there be no cut-back in ranks with its accompanying reduction in income.

Gen. McKinley to Harvard

Brig. Gen. Edward B. McKinley, USA, will retire as commandant of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces on 31 March to become Director of the Associates of the Harvard Business School.

General McKinley, who is retiring upon his own request, will take up duties in his new post at Harvard immediately upon being relieved at the Industrial College. No successor has been chosen to fill the post of Commandant at the Industrial College. The new commandant will probably be a Navy or Air Force officer, since it is understood that the post rotates among the three services.

Identification Tags

Army personnel will be required to wear identification tags only when in the field, when engaged in field training, traveling in aircraft, or when outside the continental limits of the United States.

New Army Set-up

tween the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force. Agencies of the Department of the Army will, until directed otherwise, exercise functions relating to the Department of the Air Force in the same manner that they have heretofore been exercised.

4. Figure 1 illustrates the organization of the Department of the Army. This organization provides, under the Chief of Staff, a General and Special Staff; Office, Chief, Army Field Forces; Administrative and Technical Staffs and Services under their respective heads; six army areas; the Military District of Washington; and such overseas commands as the Secretary of the Army may find necessary.

e. The following principles have been applied in designing the organization of the Department of the Army as illustrated in figure 1 and described in this circular:

(1) A simple and flexible organization with clear-cut command channels is needed to satisfy the requirements of economy and efficiency.

(2) The top organization of the Department of the Army must be capable of carrying out the Chief of Staff's orders quickly and effectively. At the peak of this top organization is the General Staff, United States Army, which must be the agency to deal with matters of high policy and high-level planning and which must also direct and supervise, to the end that orders and directives are issued and supervised to the necessary degree in their execution.

(3) The structure of the staff organization supporting the Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff must be as simple as possible with a minimum of individuals habitually reporting direct to the Chief of Staff or his Deputy.

(4) Adequate organizational means must be provided for carrying on the best possible research and development programs and intelligence and counterintelligence activities, and for the elimination of unnecessary overlapping of activities of the Department of the Army.

(5) The necessary degree of efficiency and vitality in the top echelons of the Department of the Army can be attained only through the aggressive application of the principle of decentralization. Thus, no functions should be performed at the staff level of the Department of the Army which can be decentralized to the office, Chief, Army Field Forces, major commands, or the Administrative and Technical Services without loss of adequate control by the General and Special Staffs.

(6) There should be a single continuous command channel from top to bottom of the Department of the Army organization.

(7) Direct contact and mutual arrangements within approved policies between major commands, staff divisions, and Administrative and Technical Staffs and Services are desirable and are authorized and encouraged.

2. Headquarters, Department of the Army.

The term "Headquarters, Department of the Army" will be used collectively to refer to the following agencies located at the seat of Government (Washington 25, D. C.): The Office of the Secretary of the Army (and his assistants); the Office of Chief of Staff, United States Army; the divisions of the General and Special Staffs, United States Army; and the offices of the heads of the Administrative and Technical Services.

3. Assignment of functions established by statute.

a. The functions, duties, and powers of the chiefs of the following arms are assigned to the Chief, Army Field Forces: Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, and Coast Artillery Corps (except those relating to procurement, storage, and issue).

b. The functions, duties, and powers of the Chief of Coast Artillery relating to procurement, storage, and issue are assigned to the Chief of Ordnance.

c. The functions, duties, and powers of the Quartermaster General relating to water and commercial transportation are assigned to the Chief of Transportation. The functions, duties, and powers of the Quartermaster General relating to the procurement and supply of general purpose vehicles and for all vehicle field and base maintenance are assigned to the Chief of Ordnance.

4. Organization of continental United States.

a. For command of all activities and installations, except class II activities and installations, the continental United States is divided as follows:

(1) First Army Area.—Includes the States of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, and Delaware.

(2) Second Army Area.—Includes the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, and Virginia.

(3) Third Army Area.—Includes the States of Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Florida.

(4) Fourth Army Area.—Includes the States of Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Texas, and Louisiana.

(5) Fifth Army Area.—Includes the States of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, and Colorado.

(6) Sixth Army Area.—Includes the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, and Arizona.

(7) Military District of Washington.—Includes the District of Columbia and such ad-director will take necessary action to indoctrinate each officer of his division with a thorough understanding of the duties, functions, responsibility, and authority of the various echelons of command in the Army.

d. They must act to minimize duplication. While observing the principle of decentralization, all General Staff directors will take appropriate action to minimize duplication and overlapping between the commands and services. The only workable procedure for removing and preventing duplications lies in the good faith and friendly collaboration of using commands and services, under the mentorship of the appropriate General Staff director.

9. Director of Personnel and Administration.

The Director of Personnel and Administration, General Staff, United States Army, is the military personnel manager of the Department of the Army. He has the primary General Staff interest in manpower. He is the adviser to and assistant to the Chief of Staff for administrative matters and for matters relating to manpower as a whole and to military personnel as individuals throughout the Army. He has over all Department of the Army responsibility for the procurement, allocation, and reallocation of personnel in bulk in accordance with established requirements and priorities, and for the separation of individuals from the military service. He exercises General Staff supervision and direction of the Army Safety Program.

10. Director of Intelligence.

The Director of Intelligence, General Staff, United States Army, is the responsible Department of the Army instrumentality for the collection and evaluation of information and for the dissemination of intelligence pertaining to foreign countries, their war potential and military forces. He is responsible for the procurement of information and intelligence relating to the activities of individuals or agencies potentially or actually dangerous to the preservation of the military establishment within the zone of interior, for executing counterintelligence measures, and for the collection within the zone of interior of foreign positive intelligence. He is responsible for meeting intelligence requirements of continental and overseas commands, and the Administrative and Technical Services. As intelligence is a vital function of command, the commanding generals of the major commands and their subordinate units must have intelligence agencies adequate to meet their intelligence requirements. Operating under general coordination of the Department of the Army, all intelligence agencies must mutually support and collaborate with each other to form a team serving their own, subordinate, and higher echelons. The Director of Intelligence is responsible for representing the Department of the Army on intelligence and counterintelligence matters with other Departments of the Government and with foreign governments.

11. Director of Organization and Training.

The Director of Organization and Training, General Staff, United States Army, exercises General Staff direction of the organization, mobilization, demobilization, and training of all components of the Army of the United States. Except for individual training, he is primarily concerned with matters relating to units as distinguished from the primary interest of the Director of Personnel and Administration in matters relating to individuals.

12. Director of Logistics.

The Director of Logistics, General Staff, United States Army, is the adviser to the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff on all service, supply, and research and development matters, and to the Assistant Secretary of the Army on procurement and related industrial matters. He has General Staff responsibility for logistical planning; service activities; supply control; distribution; storage, and maintenance of supplies; purchasing; production and other industrial matters; disposal of surplus property; initiation, allocation, coordination, and progress of research and development programs; conduct of research and development activities in consonance with user interest; and for the development of Army service, supply, procurement, research and development plans, policies, objectives, and programs in consonance with Army-wide plans, policies, objectives, and programs.

13. Director of Plans and Operations.

The Director of Plans and Operations, General Staff, United States Army, is responsible for the formulation, development, direction, supervision, and coordination of strategic and operational plans, current and future, for the Army. He exercises General Staff supervision acent territory as may be proscribed from time to time.

b. All functions of command (except with respect to class II activities and installations) within these areas are assigned as follows:

(1) Commanding General, First Army — First Army Area.

(2) Commanding General, Second Army — Second Army Area.

(3) Commanding General, Third Army — Third Army Area.

(4) Commanding General, Fourth Army — Fourth Army Area.

(5) Commanding General, Fifth Army — Fifth Army Area.

(6) Commanding General, Sixth Army — Sixth Army Area.

(7) Commanding General, Military District of Washington—Military District of Washington.

c. Army headquarters are located as follows:

(1) Headquarters, First Army—Fort Jay, Governors Island, New York.

(2) Headquarters, Second Army—Fort Meade, Maryland.

(3) Headquarters, Third Army—Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Georgia.

(4) Headquarters, Fourth Army—Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas.

(5) Headquarters, Fifth Army—Chicago, Illinois.

(6) Headquarters, Sixth Army—Presidio of San Francisco, California.

(7) Headquarters, Military District of Washington—The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C.

5. Chief of Staff, United States Army.

The Chief of Staff is the principal Army adviser to the President, to the Secretary of Defense, and to the Secretary of the Army on the conduct of war and the principal military adviser and executive to the Secretary of the Army on the military activities of the Department of the Army. The Chief of Staff has command of all components of the Army of the United States and of the operating forces comprising the army areas. He also commands the Army component of overseas commands, and the related supply and service establishments of the Army, and is responsible to the Secretary of the Army for their use in war and plans and preparations for their readiness for war. The Chief of Staff, under the direction of the Secretary of the Army, is responsible for the coordination and direction of the General and Special Staffs and the Administrative and Technical Services.

6. Chief of Information.

The Chief of Information advises the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff on matters of policy relating to public understanding and support of the Army, and under the direction of the Deputy Chief of Staff is responsible for staff supervision and coordination throughout the Department of the Army in the information and education field, both at home and abroad. He coordinates the information policies and programs of the Army, and as necessary in the performance of his mission exercises supervision over the functioning of the Public Information Division, the Legislative and Liaison Division, and the Troop Information and Education Division, Special Staff, United States Army.

7. Army Comptroller.

a. The personnel and functions of the Budget Division and the Manpower Board, Special Staff, United States Army, and of the Central Statistical Office and the Management Office, Office of the Chief of Staff, are transferred to the Office of the Army Comptroller.

b. The Army Comptroller shall serve, either personally or through designated representatives, as he may elect, as the Budget Officer (sec. 214, Budget and Accounting Act of 1921 (42 Stat. 23; 31 U. S. C. 22)), Fiscal Director, and Management Engineer for the Department of the Army. As such he formulates, coordinates, and supervises those matters pertaining to budget, fiscal, statistical, and management engineering activities of the Department of the Army. His duties include—

(1) Development of a plan for the business management of the Department of the Army and the presentation of periodic reports thereon to the Chief of Staff.

(2) (a) Preparation of plans and procedures for, and exercise of general supervision and control over, all budgetary matters of the Department of the Army, under policies established by the Chief of Staff.

(b) Preparation of military and civil budget estimates of the Department of the Army (sec. 214, Budget and Accounting Act of 1921).

(3) Development of systems and procedures for utilization throughout the Army of accounting and auditing for purposes of control of operations and costs.

(4) Formulation, coordination, and general supervision of basic fiscal policy for the Department of the Army.

(5) Establishment and supervision of Department of the Army fiscal policy with respect to international monetary matters and the use of foreign exchange by the Army overseas.

(6) Continuing survey and development of a Department of the Army cost analysis, reporting, and control system.

(7) Continuing survey of the effective utilization of manpower in its relationship to appropriations and to economy.

(8) Continuing survey of the Department of the Army's organization, methods, and procedures in the interest of efficiency and economy.

(9) Coordination of the collection, analysis, and presentation of statistical data, including progress reports.

8. General Staff, United States Army.

The General Staff, United States Army, under the direction of the Chief of Staff, will be responsible for the development of the Army and will insure the existence of a well-balanced and efficient military team. It is specifically charged with the duty of providing such broad basic policies and plans as will enable the Chief, Army Field Forces; Commanding Generals, army areas and overseas commands; and the heads of the Administrative and Technical Services to prepare and execute detailed programs. In addition, the General Staff assists the Chief of Staff by issuing, in the name of the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff, necessary directives to implement such plans and policies, and supervises the execution of these directives. In performing its duties the General Staff follows the principle of decentralization to the fullest degree. No function will be performed at the General or Special Staff level of the Department of the Army which can be decentralized to the major commands or the Administrative and Technical Services without loss of adequate control of operations by the General and Special Staffs. The General Staff will include five divisions, each under the immediate control of a director. Each director will plan, direct, and supervise the execution of operations within the confines of his sphere of action. In carrying out their duties, the directors of the five General Staff divisions will be guided by the following general principles:

a. They will plan, direct, coordinate, and supervise. They will assist the Chief of Staff in getting things done, in addition to coordinating, planning, and policy-making on an Army-wide level.

b. They will, by means of direct contact with troops, determine that orders, instructions, and directions are being carried out as the Chief of Staff intended.

c. They will follow the principle of decentralization to the fullest degree. The General Staff will concern itself primarily only with matters which must be considered on a Department of the Army or Army-wide level. All other matters will be decentralized down to the proper echelons of command for action or decision. In order for this to be done properly, adequate authority will be delegated to responsible commanders and the heads of the Administrative and Technical Services. Each pany, an Ordnance Company, a Quartermaster Company, a Station Hospital, etc. A Depot has been set up and is stocked with supplies ranging from a four-month level on certain items up to a year level on others. Supply is directly from the New York Port of Embarkation by ship. In addition to the US/UK garrison, a large force of Civil Police is maintained in the city of Trieste. This Police Force has been on foot for some two years and a half; has been carefully trained by US/UK officers with police experience, is well equipped, and has an excellent morale and discipline. This Force attends to the internal security of the US/UK Zone. The troops are left free for their main functions. The 351st Infantry, commanded by Col. Numa A. Watson, which composes the main combat element of TRUST, devotes its time to intensive training. It is fully equipped and has recently been supplied with the new recoilless weapons. It has good commanders. By aiming the regiment toward a high state of training and by constant integrated tactical problems with the British element of the Force, it is felt that much useful military education is provided and the Force is kept effective. It is hoped to make the 351st Infantry an effective combat outfit in every respect.

The city of Trieste is the main part of the new Free Territory. It has an excellent port—probably the best equipped port in the Mediterranean—and a fine rail net to central Europe. Its population is mainly Italian. Some 25% of the population is Yugoslav, and in the greater part of the small towns and villages in the outlying areas, the population is wholly Slovene. Trieste has been subject to great pressures since the end of the war. The population has been over-awed and intimidated, and it has been important to restore their morale and confidence, to get the resources of the city into operation, and get the people to work and reasonably contented. The US/UK soldiers have exerted healthful influence over the whole despoiled and stricken territory of Venezia-Giulia since the end of the war. With the establishment of the Free Territory and the continuing and even intensified stresses and strains that go with it, (imposed from abroad), the influence of the military here is greatly felt. It is important that the dress and deportment of the soldier be of the highest order—that he be aware of his influence and of the great responsibilities that go with it. As a representative of the United States of America, the individual in this little political entity, has an opportunity to show in himself the benefits of the great free system under which we live. He is closely observed. Every effort is made to indoctrinate him with his responsibility. The response has been very satisfactory.

In this command we have a fine opportunity for organization, discipline and training. We are excellently armed and equipped. We have good training areas, and have established camps where organizations can go for extended periods of infantry weapons firing. Later we hope to establish a firing range where all weapons, including tank guns, can be fired in tactical problems with live ammunition. Great efforts are made to reduce the extra duty demands and the restrictions on soldiers, and to develop a sense of individual responsibility and an "honor system" which will impose the minimum restrictions on the soldier's life. Through the cooperation of Allied Military Government the quarters and environment of the command are satisfactory, and are the best that the resources of the area can provide. On the whole, the response of the command to a liberal type of treatment has been good.

Foreign service today requires an intelligent, alert soldier who is proud of himself and of what he stands for. He must be of the type who will try to understand the people in whose country he is serving. He must respect their rights and have due regard for their dignity. The right kind of a soldier can do his country great service today, in his overseas assignment, and can find his work very satisfying.

The officers and men of TRUST feel that their job is significant. They feel that service in this part of Europe, especially, is satisfying, for they can see the results of their work in the attitude and increased confidence of the people of this unhappy area. It is generally felt that service here is a genuine contribution to the peace of the world, and is a real service to humanity. We are enthusiastic about TRUST and will make every effort to see that it is even a better body of troops than we say it is.

Baltimore—Maj. Gen. Cecil R. Moore, USA-Ret., who served during World War II as Chief Engineer, European Theater of Operations, was this week named Manager, Construction Department, Shops Division of Koppers Company, Inc.

In his new position, General Moore will be responsible for directing construction of all gas apparatus and precipitators made by the Koppers' Shops Division, with headquarters here.

Career Plan Progresses

A Warrant Officers manual and a new circular implementing the Department of the Army's Career plan for enlisted men will be off the presses within the next few weeks.

Final draft of the Warrant Officers manual has been completed and is now in the hands of the printers. The new manual will describe in detail the various jobs outlined in the Department's recent Circular 38, thus making it possible for personnel wishing to try for new grades to study up on their particular field of interest.

Medical Corps Selections

An Army Medical Corps Selection Board has recommended two officers to be permanent Major Generals and five to be permanent Brigadier Generals. Their nominations were sent to the Senate by President Truman on 24 March. This brings the Medical Corps permanent general officer personnel up to the authorized total of 20. Also, the Board named two to be Brigadier Generals in the Dental Corps; their nominations also went to the Senate.

Coincidental with the nomination of the general officers in the Medical and Dental Corps, the Department of the Army announced a Selection Board to recommend Regular Army Officers of the Medical Corps, Dental Corps, and Medical Service Corps for promotion to the permanent grades of Lieutenant Colonel, Major, and Captain.

Nominated to be Major General, Medical Corps, were:

Brig. Gen. Edward Allen Noyes

Brig. Gen. James Albertus Bethen

Nominated to be Major Generals, Medical Corps, were:

Col. Edgar Erskine Hume

Frank Lamont Cole

Col. Paul Henry Streit

Col. Raymond Osborne Dart

Brig. Gen. George Ellis Armstrong (Col. MC, USA)

Nominated to be Brigadier General, Dental Corps, were:

Col. Oscar Peter Snyder

Col. George Robert Kennebeck

Also sent to the Senate were the following nominations of officers of the Medical Corps to be temporary brigadier generals in the AUS:

Harry D. Offutt

John M. Hargreaves

G. V. Emerson

Leonard D. Henton

Donn F. Winn

Silas Beach Hays

Frederick A. Rosso

Crawford F. Sams

George W. Rice

Harry G. Armstrong

The Selection Board named to recommend Regular Army Officers of the Medical Corps, Dental Corps, and Medical Service Corps for promotion to the permanent grades of Lieutenant Colonel, Major and Captain will be headed by Maj. Gen. Albert W. Jenner and will convene 12 April.

Other members of the board are: Brig. Gen. Joseph I. Martin, Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas; Brig. Gen. Walter D. Lowe, Office of the Surgeon General; Col. John M. Hargreaves, Office of the Air Surgeon; Col. Edwin H. Roberts, Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo.; Lt. Col. Harold C. McKinley, Adjutant General's Department; and Maj. Clarence N. Keen, Adjutant General's Department. The latter two officers are the Recorder and Assistant Recorder, respectively, and serve without vote.

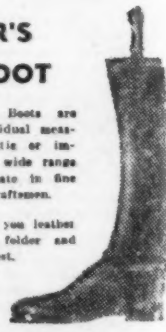

Army Nomination

On 19 March the President sent to the Senate the nomination of Col. Kenneth D. Nichols, AUS, Professor, USMA, for temporary appointment as major general in the AUS, such appointment to continue in force for the duration of his assignment as Army Member of the Military Liaison Committee to the Atomic Energy Commission and Chief of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project.

There's New Glamour in the Way it Goes

TAKE the glamour of its tapered gracefulness for granted, if you will. One glance tells you it's tops.

But wait — just wait — till you learn what makes this banner beauty run off with the year's high honors on the highway. Dollars to drachmas — you'll fairly itch to get in and GO!

For now your right foot commands a Fireball power plant that's eager as a prowling panther — and just as quiet.

Now you slip through traffic or light out cross-country fully relaxed — in a body that's bountifully big, cozily cushioned, and insulated against the usual noises of traveling.

Now you experience the first scientific system ever devised to shield a car's ride against the road noise, shake and vibration build-up you previously took as a "must."

Now you ride the washboard roads and cobbles as though they were carpet — thanks to Buick's all-coil springing — plus extra-low-pressure tires, carried on Buick's more stable Safety-Ride rims — the industry's widest.

And last but not best, if a Roadmaster's your choice, you can enjoy the near-miracle called Dynaflo Drive.* It's a new kind of drive where you move ahead in swift and liquid smoothness through all speed ranges.

When better
automobiles are built
BUICK
will build them

It's a drive where there is no clutch pedal, and where no gears ever shift, not even automatically. The power plant itself does what gears used to do!

Fact is, you'll find the new Buick sparkling with more than a score of new advances — in ten brilliant models that span three series and give you your choice of three wheelbases and four power ratings.

So why dally? Here, certainly, is the dilly of the year for smartness, for size, for engineering — for all those basic bounties that are forever Buick's.

Place your order with your dealer now — and hasten the day when you'll reach those motoring heights you hanker for.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

BUICK alone has all these features

- ★ DYNAFLOW DRIVE (Optional, Roadmaster Series)
- ★ TAPER-THRU STYLING ★ VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE
- ★ ROAD-RITE BALANCE ★ HI-POSED FIREBALL POWER

BUICK DIVISION OF GENERAL MOTORS

Rotation of Naval Aviators

The practice of rotating Naval aviators is still a good one, the Navy Department feels, despite the fact that the Congressional Aviation Policy Board has labeled it an "anachronism."

The reassignment of pilots in order to develop their abilities is done, the Navy maintains, on the assumption that each one will eventually be eligible for high command. High command does not necessarily mean flag rank; it may mean any command which requires a well-rounded experience. Capt. L. C. Simpler, Assistant Director of Public Information for Naval Aviation, explained that "it is not always easy to get out of the cockpit and perform humdrum tasks, but a well-rounded experience can be built up only through hard work and varied assignments."

The Congressional Board in criticizing the Naval policy of rotation said, "The Navy's structure of careers and duties should be overhauled and modernized in the interest of encouragement for high competence. Prior to World War II, naval aircraft were considered by the Navy high command to be the 'eyes of the Navy.' Today the battleship is obsolete and naval task forces are built around aircraft carriers. However, the naval aviator in many cases is still required to do 'deck duty' in order to qualify for promotion in certain ranks. . . The revision of these anachronisms will benefit the individuals affected and the naval service as a whole." The Board recommended that the Navy "eliminate training and duties that are not essential."

By stating that "today the battleship is obsolete and naval task forces are built around aircraft carriers," the Congressional Board, unwittingly no doubt, played up one of the Navy's arguments for rotation. An aviation officer in command of an aircraft carrier must be acquainted not only with aviation problems but with logistics, equipment, personnel and all the attendant problems of a carrier.

At present the system of rotating Naval aviators follows a more or less general pattern. The Naval aviation student is sent through Pensacola. If he is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy he has, in all probability, completed a year at sea prior to his assignment. If not an Academy graduate he is sent direct to Pensacola on induction.

Following graduation from Pensacola he is assigned to flight duty in a squadron which may be land, ship, or carrier based, where he serves from two to three years. On completion of this assignment he is ordered to change of duty which, in normal times, will be an aviation job on shore—probably as an instructor in flight training. Then back to sea in another type, or perhaps the same type, squadron for what usually amounts to a two year cruise. By this time the officer should be a fairly experienced pilot. After this cruise he is ordered to shore again for an air station job, or possibly back to training.

His next assignment will probably be sea duty. By this time he should be a senior lieutenant and, as such, will fill a flight deck, hangar deck, or other Air Department assignment on a carrier. All

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Admiral Cooke Retires

Admiral Charles M. Cooke, jr., USN, until recently Commander of U. S. Naval Forces in the Western Pacific, has received orders retiring him from active duty after nearly 42 years of service.

Born in Ft. Smith, Ark., on 19 Dec. 1886, Admiral Cooke received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Arkansas, before entering the Naval Academy in 1906. Following graduation from the Academy he completed two years of sea duty and received his commission as an Ensign in 1912. Both before and during World War I he saw service in the battleships USS Connecticut, USS Maine, USS Alabama, and in the submarine service.

Admiral Cooke, who was in command of the battleship USS Pennsylvania at the beginning of World War II, served on the staff of the Commander in Chief, United States Fleet, from 1942 until 1945. He served successively as Assistant Chief of Staff for Plans, Deputy Chief of Staff, and Chief of Staff. For "exceptionally meritorious service" in these positions he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

On 10 Oct. 1945 Admiral Cooke's title was changed by Executive Order to Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Operations. He had been Commander of U. S. Naval Forces, Western Pacific, since 8 Jan. 1946 at which time that unit was known by the wartime designation of Seventh Fleet. He will return to his home at Hillwood Ranch, Sonoma, Calif.

USNPGS Lectures

A series of lectures is to be held in the auditorium of the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School, Annapolis, during the Spring term, 22 March to 25 May. The lectures will be held from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The first five lectures in the series will be given by Dr. Jack W. Gebhard, Johns Hopkins University, who will speak on "Psychophysical Systems Research." They will be given 23 and 30 March, and 6, 13 and 20 April. On 11 May, Mr. J. K. Richards, Executive Director, Navy Industrial Association, will speak on "The Aims and Purposes of the Navy Industrial Association," and on 18 May Vice Adm. Robert B. Carney, USN, will discuss Naval Logistics.

Reina Mercedes Moved

Annapolis—The USS Reina Mercedes, "Fastest ship in the Navy," (tied fast to the dock) moved around to a new berth at the Santee Dock on 17 March with the assistance of Navy tugs from the Naval Small Craft Facility. This is her first move since September 1939, when she was towed to the Norfolk Navy Yard for inspection and repair. Also moving to the Santee Dock was the APL 31 (popularly known as the Hotel Statler). These moves are temporary to make necessary repairs to the Reina Dock.

The Reina is an old Spanish Cruiser and one-time flagship of Admiral Juan Cervera. It was salvaged by our Navy and has been station ship here since 1912.

Navy Officials to Pentagon

In line with Secretary of Defense Forrestal's determination to achieve unification of the Armed Forces plans are now underway for the movement of top-ranking Navy officials to offices in the Pentagon Building.

The matter is under study by the Space Control Committee and as soon as proper accommodations can be found the transfer will be made. According to one Department of the Army spokesman it is believed that Navy men will be in the Pentagon before the end of the summer.

It was explained that the move is being made as a matter of convenience and efficiency. It was further explained that only top Navy officials will take up offices in the Pentagon, while administrative personnel will remain in their present location.

Pay of Temporary Medicos

The Comptroller General, in blanket decision (B-70602), rules that certain Navy medical officers are not entitled to the $100 per month additional pay when on temporary duty. Following is an official digest of the decision:

"Persons appointed for temporary service in the Navy Medical Corps as acting assistant surgeons under the act of 8 Aug. 1946, or as lieutenants (jg) under section 424 of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 are not commissioned officers of the Medical Corps of the Regular Navy within the contemplation of section 1A(a) of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended, so as to be entitled to the $100 per month additional pay authorized in section 1A(b) of the latter act for such commissioned officers."

this time he is building up a well-rounded experience by becoming acquainted with ships formations, standing deck watches, learning seamanship and fire control.

At the conclusion of this cruise he may not be assigned to shore duty as such but to a patrol squadron; and he goes back to sea duty as a carrier squadron commander or group commander, with an opportunity to demonstrate his command and administrative ability.

As a senior commander he returns to sea as executive, air, or operations officer of a carrier, or air operations on an air staff. As a captain he will command a carrier, an aviation tender or be assigned staff duty. Ashore he may head or be connected with one of the many phases of aviation research and development, or he may go back to school.

Whatever his future assignment, the Navy believes that he should now know how to do a great deal more than pilot an airplane. "To fly is essential," Captain Simpler stated, "but to be able to command is equally as important."

Navy Medical Exams

Candidates for appointment to the Navy Medical Corps will be given examinations throughout the United States during May.

Candidates must be graduates of approved medical schools in the U. S. or Canada, who have completed intern training in accredited hospitals or who will complete such training within four months of the date of the exam. They must be less than 32 years of age at the time of appointment and physically and otherwise qualified.

Detailed information concerning the form and procedure of application may be obtained from Naval Officer Procurement offices or from the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Dept., Washington 25, D. C.

Amphibious Training

The First Provisional Marine Brigade, and Marine Air Group 24 will participate with Amphibious Group Three in training exercises in the Marianas Islands during April.

According to present plans the exercises call for the participation of 4,000 Navy and Marine personnel, 12 ships and 32 planes. Air support planes will be provided by Marine Air Group 24, commanded by Brig. Gen. W. L. McKittrick, USMC.

Brig. Gen. E. A. Craig, USMC, who commands the First Provisional Marine Brigade with headquarters at Guam, will be the overall commander of Marine Ground and Air Units involved. Rear Adm. F. I. Entwistle, USN, will command Amphibious Group Three.

Military and Naval units from San Diego to take part in the Marianas training include a Troop Training Unit team headed by Col. Earl S. Piper, USMC; Underwater Demolition Team 3 headed by Lt. Comdr. R. M. Romanick, USN, and Tactical Air Control Squadron 3 led by Comdr. D. A. Sooy, USN. Personnel of the west coast units sailed from San Francisco on 19 Feb. and arrived at Guam 9 March.

Navy MS Corps

Responding to a request from the Department of the Navy for an amendment to existing law which limits appointments in the Regular Navy to reserve and temporary officers, Senator Gurney (R-S.D.), has introduced S.2366, legislation which will make it possible to make appointments in the Medical Service Corps from among qualified civilians.

In a covering letter, Acting Secretary of the Navy Mark E. Andrews states:

"With this restriction on the source from which appointments may now be made in the Navy Medical Service Corps, the Department is experiencing difficulty in obtaining the number of qualified persons necessary to meet its present needs, especially in the fields of pharmacy and optometry. The proposed bill would permit appointments to be made at the present time from qualified civilians as well as from temporary and reserve officers and would, it is believed, give the Department a better opportunity of securing the desired personnel."

Vaccine for Scrub Typhus

Naval medical research has resulted in discoveries that may lead to development of a vaccine to prevent scrub typhus, which caused more than 300 fatalities during World War II.

U. S. COAST GUARD

FIVE high-powered radio transmitters, embodying the latest engineering developments, have been delivered to the Coast Guard for use in its air-sea rescue service, Walter A. Buck, President of Radiomarine Corporation of America announced this week.

Installation of two of the Radiomarine-designed stations has been completed—one at the Coast Guard Station on Fire Island, N. Y., and the other at the Coast Guard Radio Station, Alexandria, Va.

Built under rigid Coast Guard specifications to meet the special needs of its safety services, four of the radio stations employ 20-kilowatt medium frequency radiotelegraph transmitters operating in the 350 to 500 kilocycle band, with provision for instantaneous change from the calling frequency of 500 kc. to the working frequency. The fifth station is similar to the others, except for its 50-kilowatt transmitter.

Each of the five stations will have two dual high frequency transmitters for operation in the range 2-18 megacycles at 15 kilowatts power output. Provision is made for local operation of the transmitters or they may be controlled from a remote receiving station.

The Supreme Court has ruled in a decision given early this month, that former members of the Temporary Reserve who were classified as Voluntary Port Security Force are not entitled to "Veterans' Preference" in Federal employment. Headquarters will discuss the matter in detail in a Law Bulletin to be published in the future.

The Tenth Coast Guard District will be disestablished and absorbed by the Seventh Coast Guard District on 31 March. The control and administration of all functions of the 10th District will pass to the Commander of the Seventh District at 2400 on that date. The merger was authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury earlier this month, and the office of the Commander, Seventh District, has been moved to Air Station, Miami, Fla.

and direction of strategic and operational matters relating to overseas and major commands, including activities concerning locations and armament of coast and land fortifications and of emergency plans and operations for the use of Army troops in domestic disturbances; exercises supervision and coordination of all Department of the Army civil defense planning and general supervision of Army psychological warfare activities. Without violating the primary interests of other General Staff directors in their respective fields of responsibility, he coordinates all policies and directives and changes thereto, including allocation of resources, affecting strategic, operational, and political matters relating to overseas and major commands. He estimates the current situation to determine military policy, objectives, and major elements of requirements and means. He provides representation on various boards and committees concerned with strategic and operational planning. As Senior Army Planner, he supervises and coordinates the war planning activities of the General Staff directors and the major commands, and furnishes guidance on current and future plans and operations. He develops and keeps current and future operational plans involving the Army in conjunction with appropriate joint agencies. He reviews and recommends action to the Chief of Staff on joint and combined papers and initiates Department of the Army execution of approved papers of joint and combined agencies, the State-Army-Navy-Air Coordinating Committee, the Air Coordinating Committee, and other similar agencies.

14. Special Staff, United States Army.

The following divisions, because of their fields of activity, report direct to the Deputy Chief of Staff and are designated as Special Staff divisions:

- (1) Public Information Division.
- (2) Legislative and Liaison Division.
- (3) Troop Information and Education Division.
- (4) National Guard Bureau.
- (5) Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs.
- (6) Office of The Inspector General.
- (7) Historical Division.
- (8) Civil Affairs Division.

15. Public Information Division.

The Chief, Public Information Division, Special Staff, United States Army, coordinates, processes, and releases all Department of the Army announcements of public interest, including photographs and motion pictures, to news-gathering agencies, radio stations and networks, film producers, and other public and private organizations in the field of public information; supervises Department of the Army contracts with these agencies; and assists outside writers by gathering material and arranging interviews with officials within and outside the Department of the Army.

16. Legislative and Liaison Division.

The Chief, Legislative and Liaison Division, Special Staff, United States Army, formulates, coordinates, and accomplishes the Department of the Army legislative program, except appropriations bills; participates in official Department of the Army contacts with the Congress and its individual members, except in matters pertaining to appropriations; and coordinates contacts of other Department of the Army agencies with the Congress.

17. Troop Information and Education Division.

The Chief, Troop Information and Education Division, Special Staff, United States Army, is charged with developing basic plans and policies for information and education activities for military personnel. He supervises the execution of information and education programs, but in so doing does not engage in operations or administrative duties where an agency exists for that purpose.

18. National Guard Bureau.

The National Guard Bureau, Special Staff, United States Army, is the agency through which the Department of the Army maintains relations with the National Guard in the forty-eight States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico, and is charged with the administration of approved Department of the Army policies, other than those relative to training, for the National Guard not in the service of the United States, and the promulgation of Department of the Army directives and regulations applicable to the National Guard, including those relating to training.

19. Office of the Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs.

The Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs, Special Staff, United States Army, advises and assists the Chief of Staff in the exercise of his supervision and control of the Organized Reserves and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, including liaison therewith, and in keeping the Secretary of the Army informed on Reserve and ROTC Affairs. He is responsible for maintaining close contact, mutual understanding, and effective cooperation between the Department of the Army and the Reserve component and ROTC, and for necessary staff functions involved in this mission, except those functions assigned to other agencies of the Department of the Army.

20. Office of The Inspector General.

The Office of The Inspector General, Special Staff, United States Army, is charged with inquiring into and reporting upon matters which affect the efficiency and economy of the Army of the United States, and with making such inspections, investigations, surveys, and studies as may be prescribed by law or regulations, or as may be directed by the Secretary of the Army, Under Secretary of the Army, the Assistant Secretaries of the Army, or the Chief of Staff.

21. Historical Division.

The Chief, Historical Division, Special Staff, United States Army, is responsible for preparing plans and policies and for exercising supervision and direction throughout the Department of the Army for historical activities other than current reports.

22. Civil Affairs Division.

The Chief, Civil Affairs Division, Special Staff, United States Army, formulates policy, prepares plans, and takes action in coordination with other Department of the Army agencies, other agencies of the Government, and international or voluntary relief and welfare agencies on civil affairs/military government matters, including war crimes, and excluding those functions which are the responsibility of the Food Administrator for Occupied Areas in the Office of the Under Secretary of the Army. He insures that the Secretary of the Army, the Under Secretary of the Army, the Chief of Staff, and interested staff divisions are properly advised on civil affairs/military government matters.

23. Administrative Staffs and Services.

a. The Administrative Services are as follows:

- (1) Adjutant General's Department.
- (2) Judge Advocate General's Department.
- (3) Corps of Chaplains.
- (4) Office of the Provost Marshal General.
- (5) Office, Chief of Special Services.

b. The heads of the Administrative Services are also Administrative Staff officers of Headquarters, Department of the Army. As such,

General Street Deputy IG

Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, who has been serving as Air Inspector of the United States Air Force, has been named Deputy Inspector General, USAF. His successor as Air Inspector is Brig. Gen. Adlai H. Gilkeson, formerly the Deputy Air Inspector.

General Streett, who has been with the Air Force since 1917, was chief of the Military Personnel Procurement Service in the Adjutant General's Office in Washington, D. C., prior to his appointment in January, 1948, as Air Inspector. In his new post General Streett becomes the Deputy to Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Knerr, Inspector General under whose office comes the Air Inspector.

General Gilkeson was appointed Deputy Air Inspector in July, 1947. His successor in that assignment has not been named.

At the same time there was issued Joint Army and Air Force Adjustment Regulations No. 1-11-12 transferring the following functions from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force.

a. Effective as of 5 March 1948, there was transferred from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force the responsibility for—

(1) So much of the functions, powers, and duties of the Secretary of the Army and officers of the Inspector General's Department of the Army prescribed in section I of the act of April 20, 1874 (18 Stat. 33; 10 U. S. C. 174) as are deemed to relate to disbursing officers of the United States Air Force, or disbursing officers of the United States Army attached to or assigned to full time duty with the United States Air Force or the Department of the Air Force.

(2) So much of the functions, powers, and duties of the Secretary of the Army and officers of the Inspector General's Department of the Army prescribed in section 93 of the act of 3 June, 1916 (39 Stat. 206; 32 U. S. C. 15) as relate to inspection of air units of the National Guard and personnel, property, and records thereof.

(3) So much of the functions, powers, and duties of the Secretary of the Army and officers of the Inspector General's Department of the Army prescribed in section 67 of the act of June 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 200; 32 U. S. C. 49) as pertain to inspection of accounts and records relating to air units of the National Guard.

b. For such period as the Secretary of the Army continues to be responsible in whole or in part for the exercise of any functions for or in behalf of the Department of the Air Force, and concerning which inspection authority is transferred by the terms of Transfer Order 7, National Military Establishment, the Secretary of the Army and Chief of Staff, United States Army, will continue to have authority to make or cause to be made such special inquiries, studies, inspections, and investigations as are appropriate to the responsibilities of the Department of the Army.

Credit for Overseas Service

The Air Force is in process of establishing a new system for recording credit for overseas service. Under the new system individuals will receive a point score for each month served overseas.

The point value per month will vary with the theater in order that credit for overseas service might be equalized. For example, an individual serving in a theater where the overseas tour is 12 months will receive three points credit per month. One serving overseas where the overseas tour is 36 months will receive one credit per month.

New USAF Physical Training

San Antonio, Texas—The present monotonous system of cadence-counted physical training in the Air Force is to be replaced by adoption of a scientifically designed program combining basic physical movements of functional value with a psychological approach to physical development.

Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, Commanding General, Air Training Command, said, in announcing the new program, that experiments in training have proven that the old system of physical training was "out of step" and that it was incongruous to the rest of the basic training program.

Seven basic body movements are the foundation of the entire program. These are natural movements, but they develop coordination, balance and control, General Cannon said, adding that the movements are applicable to any one of 14 major sports and a practicable system of self-defense.

Strategic AC Anniversary

The Strategic Air Command this week observed the second anniversary of its activation. Local celebrations, many of which included civilian participation, took place throughout the United States.

Activated 21 March 1946 as the long-range striking arm of the U. S. Air Force, the Strategic Air Command numbers approximately 45,000 officers and enlisted personnel. From its headquarters at Andrews AFB, Md., near Washington, D. C., it directs training operations of its long-range fighter and bomber groups throughout the world.

Installations within the United States include the following Air Force bases: Andrews, Md.; Grenier, N. H.; MacDill, Fla.; Selfridge, Mich.; Kearney, Nebr.; Weaver, S. D.; Smoky Hill, Kans.; Carswell, Tex.; Walker, N. M.; Davis-Monthan, Ariz.; Castle, Calif., and Spokane, Wash.

In addition to training conducted within the continental limits, B-29 units of the famous 15th and 8th Air Forces, both of which are part of the Strategic Air Command, and under the command of Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson and Maj. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, respectively, participate in long-range routine training missions which take them to all parts of the world. At the present time these units are flying to Europe, Japan, Hawaii, Alaska, and the Caribbean area, with occasional individual flights from Europe to the Middle East.

Under the direction of Gen. George C. Kenney, who has been Commanding General of the command since its activation, and Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, Deputy Commanding General, the Strategic Air Command has steadily increased its proficiency as a global air force.

USAF Reserve Selection Board

Two promotion boards have been appointed to screen inactive U. S. Air Force reserve officers recommended for appointment to the grade of Brigadier General in the USAF Reserve.

To facilitate examination of recommended Brigadiers, one Board covers the nation's eastern section, while a West Coast Board handles the screening of officers residing west of the Mississippi River.

Heading the East Coast Board is Brig. Gen. Lawrence G. Fritz, USAF-Res., vice president of operations for American Airlines and resident of Manhasset, Long Island.

Others on this board are Brig. Gen. Clifford C. Nutt, USAF, Deputy Commander, 1st Air Force, Ft. Slocum, N. Y.; Brig. Gen. F. Trubee Davison, USAF-Res., president of the American Museum of Natural History of New York City; Brig. Gen. Harold R. Harris, USAF-Res., vice president of American Overseas Airways of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Brig. Gen. James F. McManmon, USAF-Res., private financial adviser of Lowell, Mass.

Also on the East Coast Board, but without voting privilege, are Lt. Col. Robert W. Robinson of the U. S. Medical Corps and Francis H. Monahan, the Adjutant General's Department recorder, both assigned to the First Air Force at Ft. Slocum.

The West Coast Board, headed by Maj. Gen. Victor E. Bertrandias, USAF-Res., vice president of Douglas Aircraft Co., Encino, Calif., includes Brig. Gen. Ned Schramm, USAF, Deputy Commander, Fourth Air Force, Hamilton AFB, Calif., and Brig. Gen. Thomas O. Hardin, USAF-Res., airline vice president and consultant of Waco, Texas, now on active duty with the Military Air Transport Service, and Brig. Gen. Timothy J. Manning, USAF-Res., transportation executive of Oakland, Calif.

Medical Corps member of the West Coast Board is Col. Harold R. Twitchel and the Adjutant General's Department recorder is Maj. Robert S. Saunders, both assigned to the Fourth Air Force at Hamilton AFB, Calif.

The two USAF Reserve General Officers' Promotion Boards have already considered 22 recommended promotions.

There currently remain openings for 31 more Brigadier Generals in the USAF Reserve program—four in the Air Defense Command's First Air Force, five in the Second Air Force, six in the Fourth, five in the Tenth, five in the Eleventh, and six in the Fourteenth Air Force.

Air Force OCS

The next Air Force officer candidate class will begin on or about 7 July 1948, at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Physically qualified male citizens, who are high school graduates and between the ages of 20 years and 6 months and 28 years on the date of enrollment in training, are eligible to apply. Qualified enlisted men may apply for this training by submitting application forms to the president of the nearest Officer Candidate Interview Board. The Board will advise individuals when and where they may appear to take the prescribed tests and examination.

The present Air Force officer candidate program consists of a class every six months of approximately 250 candidates each. These candidates are selected from all qualified applicants approximately six weeks before the starting date of the class.

USAF Military Justice

Army, and the Secretary of the Air Force, that the Department of the Air Force should assume complete responsibility for the administration of justice over its own personnel. Qualified military personnel from the Judge Advocate General's Department of the Army have been transferred to the Department of the Air Force to discharge this duty. However, as the discharge of judicial function is here involved, it is believed that the authority vested by Article of War 50½, Act of June 4, 1920 (41 Stat. 787), as amended, in the Judge Advocate General and the members of the Judge Advocate General's Department should likewise be expressly conferred by the Congress upon the Air Judge Advocate General and the members of the Air Judge Advocate General's Office rather than attempt to confer such authority by administrative transfer of functions under the broad powers given the Secretary of Defense.

"The Departments of the Army and the Navy have been consulted and advise that there is no objection to the enactment of this proposed bill."

The Bureau of the Budget gave approval to the legislation.

By the terms of the bill, the Air Judge Advocate General would have the rank of major general; would be appointed by the President with the consent of Congress; and would have a term of 4 years.

On retirement, or recall to active duty after retirement, he would, on release from active duty, be advanced on the retired list to the highest active duty grade held while so serving, and retired pay computed on such active duty grade.

Transfer of Functions

Responsibility for the production and dissemination of intelligence on civil aeronautical matters and foreign liaison functions related to official liaison between military representatives of foreign governments and the Department of the Air Force have been transferred from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force.

they function according to the principles referred to in paragraph 24b. The General and Special Staffs will decentralize appropriate functions to the Administrative Services to the maximum extent practicable. Direct communication and instruction between the appropriate staff divisions and the Administrative Services is directed as provided in paragraph 24c.

c. The Administrative Services are supervised and coordinated in their activities relating to personnel and administration by the Director of Personnel and Administration, except that with respect to courts martial and certain legal matters The Judge Advocate General reports direct to the Secretary of the Army or the Assistant Secretary of the Army. Activities of the above services, other than those connected with personnel and administration, are, with the exception mentioned above, under the supervision and coordination of appropriate staff divisions and direct communication for the purpose is authorized. These arrangements are not intended to preclude the furnishing of services and advice to other agencies of the Department of the Army. Such procedure is authorized and encouraged.

24. Technical Staffs and Services.

a. The Technical Services are as follows:

- (1) Ordnance Department.
- (2) Signal Corps.
- (3) Quartermaster Corps.
- (4) Corps of Engineers.
- (5) Transportation Corps.
- (6) Medical Department.
- (7) Chemical Corps.
- (8) Finance Department.

b. (1) The heads of the Technical Services are also Technical Staff officers of Headquarters, Department of the Army. As such their general functions (see par. 18, FM 101-5) include—

(a) Technical and administrative advice and recommendations to the Secretary of the Army, the Chief of Staff, and the General and Special Staffs.

(b) Preparation of plans, estimates, and orders, in order to relieve these staffs of routine duties.

(c) Coordination with these staffs of their operational, administrative, and technical plans and activities.

(2) In their capacities as heads of Technical Services, they are commanders of troops, activities, or installations assigned to their control, and heads of technical and supply services, and as such have the usual functions of command or control over troops, activities, installations, or services. These two functions of staff and command, although vested in a single individual, are separate and distinct in that each involves different responsibilities and duties, and the exercise of one is not to be confused with nor permitted to interfere with the exercise of the other.

c. The Technical Services are supervised and coordinated in their activities relating to service, supply, and procurement by the Director of Logistics. All other activities of the Technical Services are supervised and coordinated by the appropriate staff divisions in accordance with the principles governing the relationship between General Staff and Technical Staff as laid down in paragraph 5, FM 101-5. The General and Special Staffs will decentralize appropriate functions to the Technical Services, to the maximum extent practicable. Direct communication and instruction between the appropriate staff divisions and the Technical Services is directed as follows:

- (1) Personnel and administration—Personnel and Administration Division.
 - (2) Intelligence—Intelligence Division.
 - (3) Training of supply and technical troops under their command and the operation of schools for the training of officers and of technical specialists for the Army as a whole, and organizational matters pertaining to the Technical Services—Organization and Training Division.
 - (4) Technical aspects of operational and strategic plans and of operations—Plans and Operations Division.
 - (5) Service, Supply, and Procurement activities—Logistics Division.
 - (6) Research and development—Logistics Division.
 - (7) Budgetary activities—Army Comptroller.
 - (8) Public information—Public Information Division.
 - (9) Legislative matters (other than appropriations)—Legislative and Liaison Division.
 - (10) Information and education for military personnel at all activities and installations under their control, including supply of material—Troop Information and Education Division.
- d. Relations with subordinate commands of the major commands.—Directions or instructions will be issued to subordinate commands of the major commands through appropriate channels of command and not directly from one technical staff officer to the corresponding staff officer in the subordinate command. However, the duties of the heads of the Technical Services, acting in their capacities as Technical Staff officers of Headquarters, Department of the Army, will include such Army-wide technical supervision and inspections of activities as the Chief of Staff may prescribe.

25. Office, Chief, Army Field Forces.

The Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, is the field operating agency of the Department of the Army, within the continental United States, for the general supervision, coordination, and inspection of all matters pertaining to the training of all individuals and units utilized in a field army. The Chief, Army Field Forces, will execute such other functions and responsibilities as directed by Headquarters, Department of the Army, and as set forth in the Appendix.

26. Army areas.

The commanding general of each of the armies and of the Military District of Washington commands all class I installations within the army areas or the Military District of Washington. The commanding general of each of these armies is responsible for the operations, training, administration services, and supply of all units, posts, camps, stations, and installations of his command. He is responsible for certain functions at class II activities or installations, as set forth in the appendix.

27. Major command.

The term "major command" will include—

- a. All armies, zone of interior.
- b. Military District of Washington.

c. Overseas commands directly under Headquarters, Department of the Army.

28. Classification and definition of installations and activities.

Installations, subinstallations, and activities are defined as follows:

a. Installation.—An installation is real estate and the improvements thereon, which is under the control of the Department of the Army and at which functions of the Department of the Army are carried on, and which has been established by order of Headquarters, Department of the Army. Real estate and the improvements thereon utilized by posts, camps, airfields, hospitals, depots, arsenals, industrial facilities, cemeteries, etc., will generally be designated as an installation where located separately, but where located contiguously or on the same reservation, the combined property will usually be designated as one installation and the separate functions will be designated as activities at that installation.

b. Subinstallation.—A subinstallation is real estate and the improvements thereon, which is under the control of the Department of the Army and at which functions of the Department of the Army are carried on and which has been assigned as a subinstallation by Headquarters, Department of the Army, authority. Subinstallations are attached to installations for command and administration purposes although they are located separately. Generally, subinstallations will be interpreted to include the following:

- (1) Subinstallations of ports of embarkation.
- (2) Harbor defense subposts.
- (3) Subdepots.

c. Categories of installations.—The two main categories of installations are—

- (1) Command installation.—Any installation of the Department of the Army, including nonmanufacturing arsenals, primarily used or useful for activities of the Army other than for the production of material, munitions, or supplies.
- (2) Industrial installation.—Any installation of the Department of the Army primarily used in connection with production of material, munitions, or supplies.

d. Classification of installations.—Installations are classified as class I and II, depending upon command jurisdiction, as follows:

- (1) Class I installations are under the command of the commanding general of an army or the Military District of Washington.
- (2) Class II installations are under the command of the head of an Administrative or Technical Service or other Headquarters, Department of the Army, agency.

e. Activity.—An activity is a function of a group of related functions which may be carried on at an installation, a subinstallation, or at a separate location which has not been designated as a Department of the Army installation or subinstallation.

f. Categories of activities.—The two main categories of activities are—

- (1) Major activities, such as general hospital or depots, which are located at installations with other activities.
- (2) Minor activities, which by comparison with major activities are minor in scope, such as quartermaster sales commissaries or ordnance shops which may be located on or off an installation.

g. Classification of activities.—An activity may have the same classification as the installation on which located as listed in c above or an activity may have a different classification, depending on the agency having jurisdiction over the primary function of the activity.

JOTTINGS . . . Army won the recent intercollegiate handball meet, which was held at West Point. Navy, taking part in the event for the first time, finished third in a field of six, with Midshipman Ray Gornick being voted the outstanding player in the one-day round robin affair. . . Ray Swartz, Navy grappling coach, is now officially a member of George Sauer's football staff. In previous years he worked with Rip Miller on the line, but last season found him devoting his efforts to the plebe eleven. Other items from that sector reveal that Eddie Erdelatz, an assistant coach for three years, has signed to help Buck Shaw coach the San Francisco '49ers of the AAC, and Commander Dick Pratt, last year's plebe coach, has been transferred to a sea command effective 1 June. . . The Army-Air Force boxing championships will be held 11 June in Chicago. . . Due to a serious and continuing personnel shortage, only about half of the bottoms normally used will be available for the spring and summer yachting season at Annapolis. It is hoped that conditions will improve sufficiently by fall to permit the inactive boats to be placed in service for inter-battalion competition and the fall regatta. . . Each of the five varsity teams at West Point this spring will be involved in either league or championship competition. . . Navy's baseball record in the decade Max Bishop has coached the Midshipmen is 121 wins and 44 losses.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27, 1948

"If the United States acts at once and with firm and resolute purpose, the odds will continue to rest on the United States and peace through the years ahead."
—SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FORRESTAL.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Development of strong Regular establishments, including early attainment of the Air Force's 70-group goal, ready for instant action, backed and supported by a program of Universal Military Training, organized, equipped and trained to utilize modern materials of war, and coordinated with Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture and supply of such materials.
2. Retention of professionally efficient and devoted personnel through the establishment of pay scales commensurate with the rising cost of living and the increases granted in civilian pursuits; complete exemption from income tax for active and retired personnel; increase in per diem allowances; and compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on Government business.
3. Provision for retirement with rank and pay of highest grade earned in wartime on an equal basis for all classes of personnel in all the Armed Services.
4. Authorization and appropriations for construction programs to replace temporary and inadequate housing at all permanent posts and stations at home and abroad.
5. Scientific research to keep our lead in atomic weapons, guided missiles, and biological gaseous and radio active agents, and development of methods for their use and for defense against them, plus effective safeguards in secrecy and against interruption by labor disputes.
6. Development of a sound system for strong National Guard and Reserve Components of the Armed Forces working in close coordination with each other and with the Regular Establishments, and Federally equipped, housed, and trained, and with inactive duty training pay for all components.
7. Constant Service and Congressional study of the new promotion systems, operating with free and full publicity, to the end that justice will be assured to the individual and efficiency to the Government.
8. Enactment of a career plan for warrant officers of the Army and Air Force, improvement of their status and opportunities for advancement.
9. Continuance and expansion of Service Schools, including the National War College, Air University, Armed Forces Staff College, and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.
10. Upward revision of all Service widows' pension scales and expansion of the eligibility basis to insure them and their dependents a living income.

THE program for strengthening the Armed Forces as presented to Congress this week by Secretary of Defense Forrestal and the civilian and military leaders of the three Services demonstrated to the Nation the coordination and integration achieved in planning and budgetary procedure. As members of one team, Secretary of the Army Royall, Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, and Secretary of the Air Force Symington supported the over-all program for personnel and material expansions in the fighting forces. Detailed data and technical aspects were, in turn, presented and explained by General Bradley, Admiral Denfeld, and General Spaatz. Each was prepared to, and did, support the needs of the Services other than his own and to defend the necessity of all of the increases for the building up of the entire National Security Establishment. In light of the criticism directed at the Joint Chiefs of Staff by the President's and Congress' Air Policy boards, the unanimity thus demonstrated must have impressed the Committee and Congress. Secretary Royall preceded his explanation of Army needs by stressing the importance of the United States having "undisputed air superiority" and the retention of "our present sea superiority." Similar cross-support of the program was given by the others. The plan presented would increase the Army by 240,000 men, the Navy by 63,000, the Marine Corps by 11,000, and the Air Force by 35,500. It would thus impress upon the Communistic nations our determination to defend our way of life. But its effectiveness will depend upon the speed and wholeheartedness with which Congress approves and implements the program.

THE outlook has brightened for the enactment this Congress of the bill for the retirement of Regular Army and Air Force personnel in their war ranks and the establishment of a system of non-disability retirements for the National Guard and the Reserve components of all the Armed Services. The bill, already passed by the House, now has the support instead of the opposition of Senators Hill (D-Ala.) and Johnson (D-Colo.). These Senators told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that their action in blocking enactment of the measure in the closing days of the 79th Congress was based on their belief that the bill was so complex and contained so many various angles that they felt it deserved more detailed consideration than there was then time to give to it. Now after more study of its three titles they are agreed that they will withdraw their opposition and join in support of it. Senator Gurney (R-SD), chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, has directed his technical staff to institute an immediate study of the supporting data with a view to full committee consideration after UMT has been disposed of. The fact that many of the Senators who were on the committee which reported the measure favorably in the 79th Congress have continued as members of the present committee, together with the support being given to it by the three Service Departments and the National Guard and Reserve Officers Associations, augurs well for its approval. With the path thus smoothed, it remains only for Chairman Gurney to bring it out of his committee and before the Senate at the earliest practicable moment.

ACTION of the House Committee on Armed Services this week in striking out of the WAC-WAVE bill the provisions for their establishment as part of the permanent Regular Army, Navy, and Air Force, nullifies the value of the measure which virtually all of the ranking officers of the Services have urged be enacted. Personally appearing before Congress and endorsing the recommendations that these women's organizations be made permanent have been: General of the Army Eisenhower, who had 10,000 WACs in his European theater; Fleet Admiral Nimitz, whose war headquarters in Hawaii included 5,000 WAVES; General Bradley, the present Chief of Staff of the Army; Admiral Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations; General Spaatz, Chief of Staff of the Air Force; General Oates, Commandant of the Marine Corps, and numbers of their subordinates and personnel chiefs. Against their unanimous testimony to the usefulness of these war-proven women specialists and the pleas for their continuance as permanent components, the House Committee has seen fit to eliminate the provisions incorporating them in the regular establishments and to recommend their continuance only as reserve organizations. Such action would not hold in the Services those qualified women seeking permanent careers and would serve only to reduce our combat strength and to increase the present difficulties. When the measure reaches the floor of the House it must be restored to its original state as passed by the Senate, or failing that, the conference committee should reinstate the House stricken provisions.

Soften the Blow

A neighbor, passing the cabin of a mountaineer, had the bad fortune to run over and kill the mountaineer's favorite dog. He went into the house and told the man's wife what had happened and how sorry he was. The owner of the dog was out in the fields and the motorist decided he had better go out and tell him of the accident, too.

"Better break it to him easy like," advised the wife. "First, tell him it was one of the kids."

Leap Year Instructions

Major Harrison was giving the First Class a lecture on insurance the other day and was discussing the advantages of setting up a proper policy for the securing of one's dependents. During this part of the talk he stated that he knew that many of the class were not contemplating getting married for a long time. "However," he said, "Four out of every five in the preceding 'Long Grey Line' were married after only five years of service." To this statement a loud gasp issued from the lips of the audience and many slowly shook their heads. But, to prove his point he went on "I realize that you confirmed bachelors probably don't believe this but you have never seen a mouse trap pursuing a mouse and you would be surprised at the number of mice caught each year."

Just a Mite Too Long

The new recruits were standing their first inspection at the induction station in order to check whether or not all were properly and completely outfitted before being shipped out to their training camps.

After checking everyone off as having full issue, the supply sergeant bellowed, "And does anyone have any complaints?"

There was a minute of respectful silence and then a short, stubby character in the second rank spoke up. "Yes, sir. I have a complaint about my trousers."

"You look all right to me," snapped the sergeant. "What's wrong with them?"

Came the reply: "Oh, nothing much except that they're chafing my armpits!"

Not Time

Little Dorothy attending church for the first time, was surprised to see all the persons around her kneeling suddenly.

Turning to her mother she whispered to ask what they were doing. "Hush, darling," said Mumsie, "they are going to say their prayers."

"What!" piped Dorothy. "With all their clothes on?"

W. R.—To retain the enlistment allowance received at the time of your last enlistment it will be necessary for you to complete one year of your present enlistment. If you should retire on 31 March, 1948, you will be expected to refund the enlistment allowance received in Aug., 1947.

K. W. A.—The Immigration and Naturalization Bureau has advised us that the alien wife of an American serviceman must enter the United States before 28 Dec., 1948, in order to enter under the provisions of P.L. 271, 79th Congress. After she has entered the United States she may obtain permission to leave, but to retain continuance of residence she must not be absent (from the United States) for a period in excess of one year. To make application for entry under P.L. 271, the alien wife must go in person to the local American Consul. All necessary information will be provided.

F. M. W.—The Adjutant General's Office states that you may apply for a warrant officer appointment after having been released from active duty as a commissioned officer (coverage in grade) and reenlisted in your permanent grade. You may apply either for a temporary appointment or a permanent appointment as provided under the recently announced Warrent Officer Career Plan.

The U. S. battleships Kearsarge and Kentucky were successfully launched from the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co. on the forenoon of 24 March. The Kearsarge was the first to be launched, a bottle of champagne being smashed over her bow as she began to slide toward her natural element. The Kentucky was next launched, being christened by breaking over her bow a cut-glass bottle of water procured from a spring on the old Lincoln farm. Several enthusiastic Kentuckians, however, hurled some bottles of good old whiskey against the side of the Kentucky at the same time.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—Affording relief in Germany as well as elsewhere, the White House announced at midweek that the Army will retain its present control of military government in Germany, instead of turning it over to the State Department, as planned, on 1 July. General Lucius D. Clay will remain as Military Governor and Commanding General United States Forces in Europe. This will cause no joy to Soviet representatives in Germany, against whom General Clay has stood resolute on countless occasions. Assurance was given that the retention of authority by the Army will not affect the American program for turning over larger measures of autonomy to the local German officials; on the contrary, the identity of American military and political authority will prevent inter-authority disagreements which it was feared might come to pass after 1 July, and should continue to advance the steady movement toward fuller self-government and fuller responsibility for German administration. More important in the world picture, American affairs in that critical area in a critical period will continue to be administered by the exact authority whose performance over a long period has won the respect of those from whom we must have respect. This important correction of previous policy for turning over Military Government to the State Department on 1 July was necessitated by "a review of the present situation," in the words of the White House announcement. It comes at an interesting time, following immediately upon Moscow's attempt to effect unilaterally a termination of Allied Control Council activities, and to expel the western Allies from Berlin. We are there by virtue of the 1945 agreement, arrived at in the days when Moscow found it useful to cooperate with her Allies, and General Clay promptly announced, first, that the agreement was still in effect and, second, that the Americans would remain in Berlin. This appears to have given the Russians something to think about. On Monday, following Marshal Sokolowsky's "termination" of the Council, the Russians had been "ill" and unable to attend any of the seven subcommittee meetings scheduled. On Tuesday, following the American statement, they decided to resume subcommittee meetings. This time, the British Governor, Sir Brian Robertson, followed promptly by General Clay, said there would be no subcommittee meetings until the status of the all-important Allied Control Council was clarified. Sokolowsky's behavior must be attributed to Moscow's rule-or-block policy. The occasion he chose was the Americans' refusal to inform him of "decisions" he said had been made at the western-Germany negotiations, the fact being that the negotiators have no power of decision: the Soviet commander thereupon terminated the meeting and directed the next day's obstructionist activities which, in turn, ran into the firm announcement from Generals Robertson and Clay. It was an excellent time for President Truman to announce that General Clay will remain at this vitally important post, with full authority. It also is an excellent time to push the movement for collaboration in western Germany.

The hopelessness of the Palestine partition policy recognized, the United States delegate in the Security Council moved the creation of a trustee to take over when the British withdraw. This action brought from the Zionists expected recriminations, but our abandonment of partition was the least forlorn of America's various remaining choices. It had been foreseen as inevitable, and identified as a first step in retreat. As a result the Arabs know they have won an engagement. A spokesman ventured the prediction that they would accept the trusteeship but only on conditions which themselves are difficult—that Jewish immigration cease for a stated term, that the idea of a Jewish state be abandoned, that the trusteeship be for a short period, and that the Arabs themselves be dominant in that trusteeship. These are very far, unfortunately, from the conditions stated by the Zionists, who plan to take over on 16 May. The change of front by the United Nations undoubtedly weakens that organization, but Soviet belligerence necessitated that we take into account the possibility of Arab disturbance, to our own disadvantage, even though Moscow joined in the partition policy. If British arguments and Arab threats failed to provide their own warning at last November's vote for partition, suspicion should surely have been stirred by the fact that Russia was in favor of the action. In the present situation the world is undoubtedly worse off than it was previous to November, for the United Nations has been unquestionably overruled by a relatively few small nations (strengthened by a world emergency) and its next decision must be made under the handicap that this imposes for years to come. It also must be made when, in the words of Secretary General Trygve Lie of United Nations, that organization's uncertainty on partition has made "two enemies instead of one." President Truman's statement of the case, on Thursday, made it clear that temporary abandonment of partition was the only way to avoid bloodshed, and was justified by that fact. The United States had vigorously supported partition accompanied by economic union, he said, but "unfortunately it has become clear that the partition plan cannot be carried out at this time by peaceful means. . . . Trusteeship was proposed only after we had exhausted every effort to find a way to carry out partition by peaceful means. Trusteeship is not proposed as a substitute for partition but as an effort to fill the vacuum soon to be created by termination of the (British) mandate on 15 May. The trusteeship does not prejudice the character of the final political settlement." Mr. Truman clings to the hope that the use of American troops may not be necessary, on the ground that the trusteeship may not require imposition by force. He notes however that if the United Nations agrees to trusteeship, "we must take our share of the necessary responsibility. With such a truce and such a trusteeship a peaceful settlement is yet possible. Without them open warfare is just over the horizon."

Secretary of State Marshall's scheduled departure at the week-end for Bogota is accompanied by announcement that he expects to remain at the Colombian capital throughout the Inter-American Conference's life of a month or more. So long an absence from Washington at just this time is apparently contemplated—or proposed, anyway—with two purposes; first, to suggest that the existing world emergency is not quite so acute as advertised; second, to manifest this country's proper desire to demonstrate its interest in Pan-American affairs which have been shelved for the most part during the greater exigencies of affairs outside the Western Hemisphere. One may note that the Secretary's prolonged stay is an expectation, not a pledge, and the airplane which is carrying him to Bogota can carry him back to Washington with equal speed in emergency. The conference, which begins on 30 March, marks the first assembly of the nations since that at Lima in 1938. On the agenda is the consideration of a basic agreement of economic cooperation, with details of which American trading interests have expressed disagreement. It is inevitable that the conference will also consider those ERP aspects touching South and Central American support: the response to American suggestions at Bogota may indicate how close is the harmony of Pan-America.

The external campaign in behalf of the self-government forces of Italy continued at the week-end with a joint statement from America, Britain and France favoring a treaty revision to permit the return to Italy of the Free City of Trieste. It patently had an electric effect upon a dispirited Italy acutely worried over Communism's threat, and it shook Moscow's confidence appreciably. The embarrassment to the Communists was manifest. They bleated about the western nations' "imperialist motives" but they could not openly oppose the suggestion without exposing the anti-Italian nature of their own enterprises. Their tentative and foolishly thought-out solution was to let Tito approve the suggestion on condition that Yugoslavia should, in return, be given Gorizia, a cold-blooded bargain proposal which the Italians promptly refused. It must not be thought that this initial balloon exhausts Russian ingenuity: Moscow is not limited by considerations of legality, and there is a possibility that the Trieste proposal may prove to have unhappy results of its own. For the present it has the virtue of awakening Italy on the eve of the 18 April elections and support for the Gasperi government. It is an interesting sequel to President Truman's action of the previous week in granting a group of cargo vessels to Italy, without strings, and must be thought of as likely to be followed by other stimulants to Italian confidence in the west, which may be announced at the week-end, to provide courage for a stout resistance to incessant assaults from the east.

As spring approaches, the Greek prospect continues uneasy. The government forces have again had modest local successes, this time in the area west of Olympus where casualties have been inflicted on guerrillas infesting that region. The military court in Salonika has convicted most of the prisoners taken after the shelling of that city on 10 Feb., imposing 32 death penalties and 15 lesser penalties and acquitting 44. The anxiety is over the reported reconcentration of guerrillas on the far edge of the Yugoslav and Albanian boundaries, the stockpiling in their behalf in that "neutral" area as well as in Bulgaria, and the new concentration of Yugoslav troops reported near the Greek frontier. United Nations observers were lately fired on from the Albanian side of the frontier, but were unhurt. On this side of the ocean the most important action on this subject was the Senate's passage of the $275,000,000 bill for all-military aid to Greece and Turkey.

Army Veterinary Corps—Col. Oness H. Dixon, Jr., has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy during the period from October 1945 to March 1946.

Information has been received of the sudden death of Maj. James T. Traylor, 8 March, following a heart attack. He was assigned to Ft. Sill, Okla., with station at Dallas at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jean Traylor, Harlingen, Tex.

Maj. Thomas C. Jones, Washington, D. C., attended the meeting of the International Association of Medical Museums, at Philadelphia on 11 March, and presented a paper entitled "Tumors of Specialized Sebaceous Glands of Dogs." Major Jones was one of three nominated and elected as councilors of the Association.

Capt. Vernon S. Mynatt, who has been on duty in Panama for the past two and one-half years, is assigned for duty to Tyndall AFB, Panama City, Fla.

Army Signal Corps—A gold trophy has been awarded to the Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Ft. Monmouth, for having been the "Most Outstanding Exhibit" among the more than 300 displays at the World Hobby and Science Exposition which closed recently at the Coliseum in Chicago. Among the Signal Corps demonstrations offered the public were methods of talking over invisible light beams, humidity and temperature forecasts, the making of artificial snow, heat detecting tests, and advancements in photography, electronics and thermionics. The showing of part of the famous Carl Zeiss Lens collection was also a major feature of the Signal Corps exhibit.

Transportation Corps—The United States Army Transport "Wilson Victory" has been renamed "Pvt. Sadao S. Munemori" in honor of the Japanese-American war hero of the famed 442nd Regimental Combat team, and only member of that unit to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. Munemori was killed near Servavezza, Italy, in April, 1945, and received the nation's highest award posthumously.

The ceremony took place aboard the Transportation Corps vessel at the Brooklyn Army Base on 16 March. Robert Munemori, 547 Truman-Boyd Manor, Long Beach, Calif., brother of the hero, presented a portrait plaque of Pvt. Munemori to Capt. Harry Chemnitz, master of the vessel. Mr. Mike Masnoka of the Japanese-American Citizens League, first volunteer for the 100th Battalion of the 442d, eulogized his fallen comrade, and Lt. Col. James Martin Hanley, former Executive Officer of the illustrious unit presented a wreath on its behalf. Also present to honor the heroic Nisei were Maj. Gen. Ewart G. Plank, Commanding General of the New York Port of Embarkation, and Maj. Gen. Frank A. Heileman, Assistant Chief of Transportation.

Navy Dental Corps—The following named officers of the Naval Dental Corps have been authorized to attend the evening postgraduate course in Cancer Control and Oral Diagnosis given by the Illinois Division of the American Cancer Society at the University of Illinois from 31 March to 5 May: Comdrs. W. J. Charn, B. M. Hamilton, W. E. Ludwick, W. R. Stannmeyer, P. W. Sultor and C. O. Williams; Lt. Comdr. F. S. Wozniak; Lts. R. G. Cooper, N. W. Rupp, and N. J. Wirth; Lts. (jg) C. E. Gleason and E. P. Rogers.

Comdr. R. O. Wikstrom, who returned to private practice in 1946, has been appointed in the Regular Navy under the Transfer Program. He will go from his home in Salem, Ore., to Puget Sound Naval Shipyard for his first duty.

Comdr. George W. Ferguson of the Naval Dental School has been authorized to accept an invitation to present a lecture on the manipulation of dental amalgam at the Harvard School of Dental Medicine on 29 March.

Commdr. Roger G. Gerry, Philadelphia Naval Hospital, will present a clinic on Oral Surgical Prosthesis at the Annual Meeting of the Kentucky State Dental Association to be held 5-7 April at Louisville.

European Command—Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig, now Inspector General, EUCOM, will assume command of the U. S. Constabulary about 5 April. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burriss, present Constabulary Commander, will be reassigned as Commandant of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga. Col. Frank J. Pearson, Deputy Inspector General, EUCOM, will assume the duties of Inspector General upon General Craig's departure.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Rear Adm. Joel T. Boone, MC, USN, on duty in Washington as the Executive Secretary of the Committee on Medical and Hospital Services for the Armed Forces, delivered the commencement address at the Centennial Commencement of the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital of Philadelphia, which was held 18 March. Following his address, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Admiral Boone who is a graduate of the Hahnemann Medical College, Class of 1913.

Rear Adm. William J. C. Agnew, District Medical Officer, 11th Naval District, has been nominated for assignment as District Medical Officer, 14th Naval District, Pearl Harbor, T. H., where he will relieve Capt. Harold L. Jensen, who has been nominated for duty as Senior Medical Officer, Naval Station, Long Beach, Calif.

Capt. Charles F. Behrens, Chief, Atomic Defense Division, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, has been nominated as relief for Capt. Eric G. Hakansson, Medical Officer in Command, Naval Medical Research Institute, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. Captain Hakansson has been ordered to the Naval Hospital, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., for treatment.

Capt. George G. Herman, Executive Officer, Naval Medical Center, Guam, has been nominated as relief for Capt. Dwight J. Wharton, Medical Officer in Command, Naval Hospital, Naval Medical Center, Guam. Captain Wharton will go to the Naval Hospital at Mare Island, Calif., as Executive Officer, relieving Captain Dunsinberre, who has been nominated as relief for Capt. Isaac B. Polak, Executive Officer, Naval Hospital, Newport, R. I.

Army Field Forces—General Jacob L. Devers, Chief, Army Field Forces, attended a meeting of the Research & Development Board at the Department of the Army, Washington, 25 March.

Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, Chief of Engineers, USA, addressed the officers and warrant officers of Office, Chief, Army Field Forces at a staff conference, 22 March. General Wheeler's subject was "The Structure, Functions, and Missions of the Office, Chief of Engineers."

Col. Samuel L. McCroskey, Chief, Operations Group, and Col. Charles C. W. Allan, Civilian Components Division, both of the G-3 Section, visited the Department of the Army, Washington, 23, 24 March to confer with the Director, Organization & Training Division and the Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs.

Col. George E. Lynch, Chief, UMT Branch, G-3 Section, visited the Organization & Training Division of the Department of the Army, Washington, 22-23 March, to discuss UMT Planning.

Lt. Col. Hallett D. Edson, Regular Training Branch, G-3 Section, visited the Organization & Training Division of the Department of the Army, Washington, 23-26 March, to complete reports on two Arctic tours.

Lt. Col. Claude L. Shepard, Jr., Air & Special Training Branch, G-3 Section, and Lt. Col. Ernest T. Barco, Jr., Combat Arms Branch, G-3 Section, are visiting Ft. Knox, Ky., Ft. Sill, Okla., and Ft. Benning, Ga., in turn during the period 22-30 March, to inspect and discuss light aviation training being conducted at these installations.

Maj. Jesse M. Charlton, Jr., Bulk Allotment Branch, G-3 Section, visited Ft. Jackson, S. C., 19-23 March, where he conferred with representatives of the 3d Army and the 5th Inf. Division.

Maj. Clayton A. Bird, Supply, Maintenance and Development Division, Engineer Section, visited Ft. Knox, Ky., 15-17 March, where he attended a conference at Army Field Forces Board Number 2.

Two officers arrived recently for permanent duty with Office, Chief, Army Field Forces. They are Col. Joseph B. Daugherty, QM, from the Fairfield-Suisun AFB, Calif., assigned to the QM Section and Col. Leo V. Warner, AGD, from the Adjutant General's Office, Department of the Army, Washington, assigned as the Adjutant General, Office, Chief, Army Field Forces.

Naval Air Transport Service—A group of NATS crewmen recently experienced a flight that they will long remember. Flying the Hotshot eastbound on 1 March, after some 4 hours of snow and freezing rain on Green 4, descent was commenced from 13,000 to 9,000 feet in a severe storm in the vicinity of Las Vegas (Tapiá range). Rime ice had been accumulating off and on, and clear ice had started to build up. With power off, rate of climb indicated up 4,000 feet per minute, and within 90 seconds the RSD went to 18,000 feet; indicated airspeed was 250 mph. Turbulence was extreme enough to tumble the automatic pilot units. The plane finally cleared the storm at 16,000 feet near the Gage range (vicinity Amarillo). Lt. Ayars called CAA to report his unscheduled change in altitude, to be advised that no other traffic was in the area. From then on, "each wispy cloud was accorded the respect shown a King Cobra." After order and calm was restored—(the Flight Orderlies had been amply occupied with 33 passengers and their coffee and oxygen needs)—the aileron controls seemed sluggish; in fact, the discrepancy sheet called for a complete structural check. But good handling, plus properly functioning oxygen gear, prevented what might otherwise have developed into a serious situation.

VR-3 pilots enjoyed a talk on Air Traffic Control delivered 27 Feb. at Patuxent River by Mr. Charles E. Frazier, Senior CAA Controller for the Washington, D. C., area. Mr. Frazier spoke on present control methods, plans for future control, and the reasons behind various "odd" clearances encountered at times during adverse weather conditions. Following the talk, discussion was had relative to Washington and Patuxent River approaches. Mr. Frazier complimented NATS pilots for their cooperation with the CAA and compliance with existing ATC directives.

Joint Brazil-U. S. Military Commission—Maj. Richard I. Paul, Infantry Unit, U. S. Army Section, returned to Rio de Janeiro on 16 March from the United States, where he had been recuperating from injuries received in an accident last October near Vila Militar. Major Paul, who was participating in Brazilian Army maneuvers, was injured when the jeep in which he and two Brazilian Officers were riding overturned after hitting an Army truck. All the occupants of the jeep were hurt. Major Paul's right arm was broken in four places, necessitating several operations; he also sustained concussions and internal injuries. He spent a month in Stranger's Hospital, Rio de Janeiro, before being removed to Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Major Paul is the son of Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Director of Personnel and Administration, General Staff, U. S. Army. He arrived in Rio in May 1947. During World War II he served with the 69th and the 26th Infantry Divisions, participating in the campaigns of Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal, the Occupation Medal and the Victory Medal.

Navy Nurse Corps—The following have been nominated for change of duty: Lt. Francis E. Quebbeman, from USS Repose to Bureau of Medicine & Surgery, Navy Department, Washington; Lt. Minerva A. Butt, from Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, Fla., to Naval Hospital, Charleston, S. C.; Lt. (jg) Margaret E. Doyle, from Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., to Naval Dispensary, Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J.; Ens. Laura E. Goodwin, from Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N. Y., to Naval Hospital, Parris Island, S. C.; Lt. Alta C. Hathaway, from Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif., to Naval Hospital, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.; Lt. Mary J. Henson, from Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, Fla., to Naval Hospital, Charleston, S. C.; Lt. Kathleen Morrow, from Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, Fla., to Naval Hospital, Charleston, S. C.; Lt. Annette Roberts, from Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, Fla., to Naval Dispensary, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.; Ens. Margaret I. Stubbs, from Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N. Y., to Naval Hospital, Parris Island, S. C.; Lt. Mary C. Warner, from Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., to Naval Dispensary, Naval Powder Factory, Indian Head, Md., and Lt. (jg) Kathryn E. Lopartz, from Naval Hospital, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., to Naval Dispensary, Naval Air Station, Sangley Point, P. I.

National Guard—Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, Chief, National Guard Bureau, has announced provisions to step up the six-year training program to prepare the National Guard for its established role in the Nation's M-Day Force. Now a Federally recognized National Guard Army unit may begin the six-year program set up by the Army Field Forces when the unit reaches twice the cadre strength in enlisted men and 50 per cent of allotted officer strength, or 30 per cent of enlisted and 50 per cent of officer strength, as allotted under Tables of Organization.

Lt. Col. Charles F. Sawyer, who returned in January from Austria after more than two years' duty as Deputy Chief, Economics and Finance Division, U. S. Allied Commission, now assigned to the Training and Military Education Branch of the Organization and Training Group of the National Guard Bureau.

Eighty-four units of the Washington National Guard have been activated as of 18 March. Present strength of air and ground forces totals 3501 officers and enlisted men. Five units of the 60th Wing Air National Guard will be activated in Seattle and Spokane within the next 30 days.

During the ensuing 12 months, and until termination of the "very, very serious" world situation announced by the Secretary of State, "all tenders of resignation by officers in the Washington National Guard will be disapproved, unless the reason therefor is so valid special consideration is justified. The same policy will also apply to the discharge of enlisted men for reason other than physical disability or removal from the State.

Military Air Transport Service—Capt. Paul Richter, USNR, and S. Paul Johnston, USNR, and Cols. G. Grant Mason, Henry C. Kristofferson, and Samuel E. Gates, USAF Reserve, have been recalled to temporary duty as active duty as special staff advisors to the Navy-Air Force working group engaged in forming the new Military Air Transport Service. They were recalled to active duty because of their wartime experiences in organizing and operating the two military transport services, and their civilian backgrounds in the field of commercial aviation. As part of their duties, the reserve specialists have accompanied the joint group of conferences with Rear Adm. J. W. Reeves, NATS commander at Moffett Field, Calif.; Maj. Gen. Bob E. Nowland, ATC Pacific Division commander, Fairfield-Suisun AFB, Calif., and Maj. Gen. William H. Turner, ATC Atlantic Division commander, Westover AFB, Mass.

Following a visit of the Joint Navy-Air Force group to Fairfield-Suisun Air Force Base recently, Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander designate of the MATS and Rear Adm. John P. Whitney, USN, his Deputy, indicated that present thinking in line with the general organization of the new service may lead to the division of the service into three major sections—Pacific, Continental, and Atlantic.

General Kuter and the joint group met on 19 March with Rear Adm. J. W. Reeves, NATS commander at Moffett Field, where they were briefed on how NATS performs its mission with the means at its disposal.

Army Chaplain Corps—Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, spoke during a recent Red Cross Meeting in connection with the Annual Red Cross Fund Campaign. The Meeting took place on 23 March (Special Government Report Day) in the U. S. Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Washington.

Col. Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Chief of Chaplains, attended the Washington Notre Dame Club Communion Breakfast, Sunday, 21 March.

Maj. Karl L. Darkey, Assistant, Planning and Training Division, Office Chief of Chaplains, was on temporary duty, 15 and 16 March, at the Columbus General Distribution Depot, Columbus, Ohio. While in Ohio, Chaplain Darkey spoke during a Masonic Lodge Meeting in Sunbury, Ohio.

Recent Chaplain visitors to the Office of the Chief of Chaplains were: Lt. Col. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Maj. Erwin T. May and Maj. Robert J. Sherry, all of The Chaplain School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and Capt. Ernest L. Harrison, 2164 ASU, Station Complement, Ft. Eustis, Va.

Far East Command—Maj. William F. Stanton has been appointed 1st Cavalry Division Signal Officer, succeeding Lt. Col. Edward L. Ørstad, who has been returned to the Zone of the Interior for reassignment.

Sgt. Leonard R. Stensland has received a Certificate of Achievement for his work as depot sergeant, Special Service Depot, USAFIK, at Ascom City. The award was made by Col. M. B. Bell, Commanding Officer, Special Troops, XXIV Corps, and was presented by Lt. Col. J. S. Burbage, Supply Officer, XXIV Corps Special Service Section.

Alumni and ex-Cadets of the USMA now stationed in Korea held a dinner dance at the USAMGIK Officers' Club on 13 March, in commemoration of the founding of the Academy in 1802. Graduates and ex-Midshipmen of the USNA were invited to attend. Approximately 250 persons attended. Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, USAFIK Commander, and Maj. Gen. Charles G. Helmick, Deputy Military Governor and a USNA graduate, made brief talks.

Army Institute of Pathology—Col. Eglin K. Wansborough, Director General of the Canadian Army Dental Services, was an official visitor at the Army Institute of Pathology on 17 March. He was accompanied by Maj. John Law, Dental Division, Office of The Surgeon General.

Dr. John W. Rebeck, of Detroit, Mich., formerly a member of the Army Institute of Pathology professional staff, gave a special lecture to the staff on 18 March. His subject was "Electron Microscopy of Leukocytes and Leukocyte Functions."

Dr. Hans F. Smetana, Chief of the Pathology Division, Army Institute of Pathology, gave a talk on "Rheumatic Fever" before the George Washington University School of Medicine on 11 March.

Army Finance Department—Col. Harold F. Chrisman, Chief, Receipts and Disbursements Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, is visiting the European Command in connection with the new Savings Bond program whereby bonds will be issued direct to local purchasers in that command instead of by the Army Finance Center in St. Louis. Lt. Col. Curtis A. Shrader was assigned to the Receipts and Disbursements Division recently upon completion of a course at the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

Capt. Henry E. Bates, Management Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, will depart for duty as disbursing officer for U. S. Army troops stationed at Ft. Churchill, Manitoba, Canada, upon expiration of leave. He will replace Maj. Elmer W. Dean, who is due to return to the United States.

Adjutant General's Department—Col. Norman A. Donges, AGD, formerly Chief, Strength Accounting Branch, Administrative Services Division, AGO, has been assigned to the Paraguay Mission.

Col. Bruce R. DeVazelle, USAF, has been relieved from assignment with Military Personnel Procurement Service Division, AGO, and transferred to Hq., USAF, with duty in the Office, Secretary of the Air Force as Director, Public Relations Office.

In this, our crucial hour

In the past month, a limited number of complimentary, pre-publication copies of LOOK TO THE ROCK was distributed to key political and military leaders.

Yet, with only these few copies in circulation, you may already have heard about this book—not merely because it shows that war with Russia is inevitable and that world government and stability can only be achieved following this conflict . . . but because LOOK TO THE ROCK objectively and scientifically proves the validity of Scriptural prophecy as it relates to our time.

A former commissioned officer in the British Navy, Mr. Saunders has brought to light a new and revealing clarity to equip us all to face the approaching crisis; his scholarship and the source of his predictions can be important factors in helping to make clear the urgent and inescapable need for large-scale military preparedness. Only a reading of LOOK TO THE ROCK can fully demonstrate the force and value of his momentous and stirring message.

WHEN Mrs. Parker West entertained in honor of the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, 20 March, she was carrying out a custom she and Major West established some 33 years ago, when they gave a similar function for the then Chief of Staff and Mrs. Hugh L. Scott. The party was a tea held at her Connecticut Ave. apartment, which was gay with Spring blossoms. The beautifully appointed table was presided over by a number of the hostesses friends: Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Conger Pratt; Mrs. Thomas H. Green; Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg; Mrs. Carl Spaatz; Mrs. Harold Walker; Mrs. Robert A. Taft; Mrs. Owen Brewster; Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely, and others. Also in the company were Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Wade Halslip; Rear Adm. and Mrs. Clark Woodward; Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Martin; Col. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, and Col. and Senora de Munilla.

The Officers' Club at the Army Medical Center on 19 March was the scene of a cocktail supper, at which Col. and Mrs. William W. Nichol were hosts. Among the guests were: Maj. Gen. George C. Beach, Jr., Commanding Officer of the Center, and Mrs. Beach; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Shelley U. Marietta; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert W. Kenner; Brig. Gen. (Ret.) and Mrs. Raymond P. Metcalf, parents of the hostess, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George Armstrong.

Others present included: Colonels Rufus L. Holt, James M. Kimbrough, Harold Wellington Jones, Frank Cole, Raymond Dart, Raymond Randall, Clifford Morgan, J. B. Coates, Frank Hamilton, Oscar Reeder, Charles Gingles, Montgomery Smith, Charles Mugett, Martin Du Frenne, Philip Mallory, Roy E. Roberts, Allen Bracher, Walter Moursund, Austin Lowrey, Louis Vickers, and John H. King, all of them attached to the Post, and accompanied by their wives.

Lt. Col. Ida Danielson was also present, as were Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. James Little; Maj. and Mrs. Merritt Birch; Maj. and Mrs. Humbert L. Riva; Maj. and Mrs. Anthony Zelenas; Maj. and Mrs. J. B. Lamond; Maj. Edward Slon and Maj. William T. De Vann.

Capt. and Mrs. William Dwight Chandler and Capt. and Mrs. Robert M. Hinckley have left Washington on a motor trip through the South which will take them as far as New Orleans. On the return trip they will visit the azalea gardens in Charleston, S. C., where they will be joined by Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Byrnes, also of Washington.

Col. and Mrs. Frederic W. Boye are house guests of Col. and Mrs. E. H. de Saussure at their Charleston, S. C., home, where they have resided since Colonel Boye retired.

Admiral and Mrs. Charles M. Cooke, Jr., spent part of the past week in Washington as guests of Rear Adm. and Mrs. H. A. Stuart. Admiral Cooke, retiring Commander of Navy forces in the Western Pacific, arrived here with Mrs. Cooke from China. They are going on to Hillwood, Sonoma County, Calif., to live.

The Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., and Mrs. Holloway, are entertaining

"UNITED STATES AT WAR"

A limited number of copies of the Army and Navy Journal's historic volumes, "United States at War" is still available. This series, the first volume of which was published 7 December 1942 with succeeding volumes each year until the War's end, forms a complete history of World War II in authoritative articles written by Military, Naval and civilian leaders actually in charge of the operations in the active theaters and at home. Profusely illustrated, they merit a place in every well balanced library.

A small number of each of the volumes is ready for distribution at $3.00 per copy in paper binding and $5.00 in cloth binding. (Copies of Volume I are available only in paper binding.)

Weddings and Engagements

FORT MYER Chapel was the scene of the wedding on the evening of 12 March when Miss Nancy Ellen Benner became the bride of Lt. John James Briscoe, USA, son of Mrs. N. Butler Briscoe, and the late Colonel Briscoe, whose last post was Ft. Knox, Ky. The Chief of Chaplains, Maj. Gen. Luther Miller officiated before the altar decorated with Spring blossoms and lighted by tall tapers.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, veiled in tulle, which served as a foundation for an exquisite rose point heirloom veil. Her attendants were Miss Lois Loucks, daughter of Col. C. E. Loucks, maid of honor, and Mrs. James Benner, matron of honor.

Lieutenant Briscoe, USMA '45, has as attendants classmates at the Academy, now stationed at Holabird and recently back from duty in Japan. The best man was Lt. Fred Kockil.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Officers' Club. The bride cut her cake with a saber and was toasted under crossed swords, in lieu of the usual ceremony of leaving the church under the military arch.

The bride attended George Washington University and Ohio State College.

Lieutenant Briscoe was graduated from the University School of Louisville, Ky., before entering West Point. He is now stationed at Ft. Meade, Md.

The young couple are temporarily residing with the bridegroom's mother at the William Penn, Washington.

Miss Mara Louise Coffey became the bride of Capt. Thomas Quinton Donaldson IV, 19 March, at a candlelight ceremony in the Cadet Chapel, USMA, West Point, N. Y. She was given in marriage by her father, Col. John Will Coffey, Professor of Ordnance at the Academy. Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, of Washington, D. C., officiated.

The bride wore a cream colored satin gown on princess lines. Her headress was a band of pearls to which was attached a nixon full length veil, which was sent by the bride's sister, Mrs. R. B. Hunter of Tokyo, Japan. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, centered around a canhamania orchid.

The maid of honor was Miss Laura Ann Hughes, daughter of Mrs. T. P. Sager of Washington, D. C. Other attendants were Miss Sarah Donaldson of Panama, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Frances Case, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Case, USA-Ret., of Washington, D. C.

The best man was Col. T. Q. Donaldson, III, father of the bridegroom. He is stationed in The Canal Zone, Panama.

The reception was held at Culham Hall immediately following the ceremony. After a wedding trip in the South, Captain Donaldson will return to West Point and resume his duties as an instructor. The couple will reside in East Apartments, West Point, N. Y.

The bride attended the University of Maryland and Wilson College, and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Captain Donaldson is a graduate of USMA, Class of January, 1943.

General and Mrs. George C. Kenney, Andrews Air Force Base, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Julia Churchill Kenney, to Lt. Edward Carl Hoagland, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carl Hoagland, sr., Louisville, Ky. The wedding will be this Spring.

Miss Kenney was graduated from Bradford Junior College, Haverhill, Mass., and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Lieutenant Hoagland attended the University of Kentucky, Lexington, and The Citadel, Charleston, S. C. He is a fighter pilot and is in the 339th Squadron, 4th Fighter Group, Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

General Kenney is Commanding General of the USAF's Strategic Air Command.

Miss Vivianne Pamela Walters of Port Elizabeth, South Africa, and Walcott, England, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Walters, Walcott, England, became the bride of Maj. Hal F. Simmons, U. S. Air Force, Saturday evening, 6 March, at the Harlaning Community Church, Harlaning, Germany. Chaplain

Hudson officiated.

The bride wore a dusty pink suit with grey and dubonnet accessories, and her flowers were pink carnations.

Lt. George W. Cogell gave the bride in marriage, and her only attendant was Mrs. Cogell who wore a brown suit with brown accessories.

The reception was held at the Officers' Club, Haus Der Kunst, in Munich. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom were Lt. Col. Howard E. Conklin, and Lt. and Mrs. George W. Cogell.

Major and Mrs. Simmons left for a one week trip to the Swiss Alps.

Major Simmons is the son of Mrs. J. E. Simmons, Kerens, Texas, and is presently serving as Operations Officer of the Oberpfaffenhofen Air Depot, Oberpfaffenhofen, Germany.

Before entering the Service in July, 1941, at Dallas, Texas, he attended the University of Texas and was graduated in June, 1941.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Helmick announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Louise, to Mr. Fred Baylor Settle, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Settle of Lebanon, Va.

Mrs. Helmick and her daughter have been making their home in Denver, Colo., during the absence of General Helmick in Korea where he is Deputy Military Governor, stationed at Seoul.

Miss Helmick is a graduate of Skidmore College and served as a physical therapist with the 13th General Hospital for two years in the Pacific Theater.

Mr. Settle is a graduate of Lynchburg College and since his four years' service with the Army during the recent war, he has been associated with Peter Kiewit Sons Co., in Denver and Omaha. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. James C. Pryor of Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, announces the engagement of her daughter, Frances Pierpont, to Mr. Edward F. Beyer, Jr., son of Capt. and Mrs. Edward F. Beyer of Brooklyn and New Orleans.

Miss Pryor, who is the daughter of the late Rear Adm. James C. Pryor, Medical Corps, USN, attended Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn, and was graduated from Vassar College in 1941. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Beyer was graduated from Stanford University in 1939 and took his graduate degree at the School of Business there. He is in business in Mexico City.

After the wedding, which is planned for May, the couple will make their home in Mexico City.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Howell of Philadelphia, Pa., announce the engagement of Mr. Howell's sister, Mrs. William O. Rowland, to Maj. Gen. L. W. T. Waller, Jr., USMC-Ret.

Mrs. Rowland has been active in Red Cross affairs since 1926; she served as Chairman of Volunteer Special Services from 1939 to 1947, and was recently made Third Vice Chairman of the National Organization.

General Waller is the son of former Maj. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller, USMC, and Mrs. Waller. During the First World War General Waller served with the Second Division in France. During the last war, he was Director of Personnel at Headquarters Marine Corps and later Commanding General, Marine Garrison Forces, Pacific.

Col. and Mrs. Albert Milton Pigg, of Arlington, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter Millicent Celeste, to Lynn Gronna Herbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Herbert, Jr., of Washington, D. C.

Miss Pigg was graduated cum laude from Washington College in Chestertown, Md., in the Class of 1946. She is a member of Alpha Pi Omicron Sorority. She is also a member of the Junior Army Group and belongs to The Army Daughters. At present she is a chemist with the Pentagon Nutrition Laboratory.

Mr. Herbert is the grandson of the late Senator Gronna, of North Dakota, and served in the Signal Corps during the war.

The wedding is planned for late summer.

8th Infantry Division Reunion

Extensive plans are being formulated for the first post-war reunion of the 8th Infantry Division to be held at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., on 20 Nov. Former members of the Division should contact Maj. Gen. W. G. Weaver, USA-Ret., 240 Bushnell Ave., San Antonio.

Age-in-grade Suspended

As a result of the present international situation, temporary changes have been made in the Army Department policy recently announced governing extended active duty for non-regular officers.

Under these temporary changes civilian component officers under age 60 in grade of Lieutenant Colonel and below who were ineligible to sign a new Category contract by reason of being over age in grade may be retained on active duty in their present assignments. No changes in the status of officers serving in the grade of Colonel were announced. All non-regular officers other than General Officers and those in the Medical Corps will be separated upon reaching age 60.

The instructions effecting changes in extended active duty requirements also stated that officers holding only AUS commissions dated subsequent to 6 Dec. 1941 may be held on active duty in their present assignments. It was further announced that the provisions requiring former enlisted men now on extended active duty as officers or warrant officers to be separated for enlistment in grade prior to 30 Sept. 1948, have been suspended. Those affected by this suspension have been guaranteed an opportunity for enlistment in grade 1 upon eventual separation.

Obituaries

Miss Charlotte G. Wilson

Miss Charlotte Gladys Wilson, 27, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Maybin H. Wilson, 4109 Avenue F, Austin, Tex., died at Brooke General Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex., 13 March, after an illness of 16 months.

Funeral services were held 16 March at Brooke Army Medical Center Chapel No. 1, with Chaplain Frederick H. Wiedage, USA, and Dr. P. D. Miller, pastor First Presbyterian Church of San Antonio, officiating. Interment was in Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery.

Born in Coblenz, Germany, in the Army of Occupation, Miss Wilson came to the United States at the age of two and one-half years. She was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va., in 1941, and was listed among "Who's Who in American Colleges" of that year. She was a member of West Virginia Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa sorority. In 1943 she was an honor graduate of the School of Library Science, Louisiana State University, and elected a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Honor Society of Louisiana State University.

After serving as a member of the staff of the New Orleans Public Library, Miss Wilson in April 1945 became librarian of the Army Post at Camp Hood, Tex. In November 1946 she contracted the virulent disease, poliomyelitis, and for more than a year was in an iron lung at Brooke General Hospital. A few days before she passed away, Miss Wilson was honored with membership in the Army Daughters of San Antonio.

Besides her parents, Miss Wilson is survived by her brother, Maybin H. Wilson, Jr., and her grandmother, Mrs. Edward Ganche of New Orleans, La., and uncle, Col. Vennard Wilson, Cav., of Ft. Riley, Kan.

Col. Reuben A. MacBrayer, AUS-Ret.

Col. Reuben Adolphus MacBrayer, MC, AUS-Ret., died in Southern Pines, N. C., on 21 Feb. He was 57 years old.

A graduate of Wake Forest College and the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, Colonel MacBrayer saw service in Mexico prior to World War I, after which he was on active duty in the United States for several months.

After several years in civilian practice, Colonel MacBrayer entered the Army of the United States shortly after Pearl Harbor, serving in the ETO as Hospital Inspector for the Theater.

He is survived by his widow, Myrtle F. MacBrayer, Southern Pines, N. C.; a brother, Lewis MacBrayer, and a sister, Mrs. Sadie McCain. Colonel MacBrayer was a fellow in the American College of Physicians, a fellow of the N. Y. Academy of Medicine, and a member of the Association of Military Surgeons of the USA.

Mrs. William Pinkey

Mrs. Helen Jane Pinkey, wife of M. Sgt. William Pinkey, USA-Ret., and mother of Lt. Col. William N. Redding, Lt. (jg) William Pinkey, Jr., Lt. Vernon W. Pinkey, and the late Capt. William J. Spencer, USA-Ret., died at San Rafael, Calif., 12 March. Funeral services were held 15 March at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, with interment following in Golden Gate National Cemetery.

General Mitchell Honored

A special medal of honor will be awarded posthumously to Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, by General Carl Spaatz.

Chief of Staff of the U. S. Air Force, in ceremonies today, 27 March, at USAF Headquarters. The medal will be accepted by William Mitchell, Jr., son of the late General Mitchell.

Awarded to General Mitchell for his leadership in aviation, the special gold medal was authorized by the 79th Congress in 1946. Recently completed, the medal was presented to General Mitchell's son in the name of the people of the United States, in memory of his famous father. On one side is a likeness of General Mitchell; on the reverse side an inscription, "For outstanding pioneer service and foresight in the field of American military aviation."

Gen. Parker to be PMG

Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Jr., has been appointed Provost Marshal General of the Army, succeeding Brig. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, Jr.

Although the Department of the Army has made no announcement with respect to General Bryan's new assignment, it is understood that he will be given duty overseas.

Maj. Gen. John P. Lucas has been designated as Deputy Commanding General, Fifth Army, upon relief of Maj. Gen. Parker from that post on 10 April.

Test New Jet Engine

The U. S. Air Force has awarded to the Wright Aeronautical Corporation a contract for accelerating the testing and evaluation of the powerful Lockheed-developed XJ-37 turbo-jet engine.

Initial work on the XJ-37 was begun by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and continued by the Menasco Manufacturing Company under the supervision of Lockheed. To expedite its development, the project has been transferred to the Wright Company, where a comprehensive engineering staff, a turbine development laboratory, and other testing and research facilities are available.

The XJ-37 is designed to produce a rated thrust of 5,000 pounds. Because of its projected low fuel consumption, this design is of particular interest in the jet-turbine field. Its basic design may be applied to a pure jet or to a turbine with propeller. The extremely small frontal area of the XJ-37 facilitates installation in either wing or fuselage with a minimum of air resistance of nacelle.

Financial Digest

Although bituminous coal miners have continued idle, forcing increasing shut-downs in the steel industry, securities markets were more active during the week with many shares moving up one to three points. At the same time, cotton futures stabilized after a week of declines with gains of 35 cents to $1 per bale registered by mid-week.

Other commodities, including grains and oils, moved upward despite the fact that more than 50 per cent of the meat-packing plants are idled by strikes.

Indications that the President would intervene in the coal tie-up through the powers contained in the Taft-Hartley labor law, doubtless steadied the securities markets; while some segments of the packing industry had compromised with the unions, thus helping the grain markets.

Congressional passage of the income tax reduction bill, with final passage over an anticipated presidential veto, has also been a stabilizing influence.

Meanwhile, industrial operations and planning move on at a pace that seems to belie any serious threats from the mine stoppages and consequent reduction of steel output.

Government short-term securities—30-day issues—continue in demand, but at discount rates of less than one per cent per annum, indicating that banks and investment houses prefer ready cash on hand for advancement to business and industry.

Treasury receipts are still running at high levels and, barring an enormously expensive emergency, the fiscal year will probably be ended with a Treasury surplus of around $8 billion.

Corporation reports of 1947 earnings continue at high levels, many of them running as great as 35 per cent above 1946 figures. New security offerings for research and expansion purposes continue almost daily with most of them snapped up at premium prices.

There continues some lag in the building and construction industries, partly accounted for by materials and labor shortages, but lurking in the background has been fear on the part of some operators that the Government will not meet with much success in settling the coal miners' grievances at an early date.

Field operations of the United States Service overseas may become self-supporting by 1950 if shipping continues at a high level and employment within the industry remains constant, a statement from USS declared this week. During 1947 the income received from merchant seamen in payment for various services in USS units overseas amounted to 71% of the gross expenditures necessary for maintaining USS facilities abroad.

In 1947 the expense of supporting nineteen overseas port facilities and servicing four additional adjacent ports, totaled $1,350,000. Income from seamen, mainly for board, lodging and beverages, amounted to $930,000, leaving a deficit of $420,000.

The first award of a new fellowship established by the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers has been made to Mr. Nishan M. Eskigian, of Fairview, N. J., a graduate of Stevens Institute of Technology.

The fellowship will provide for Mr. Eskigian a year of study at the Experimental Towing Tank of Stevens Institute, Hoboken, N. J. He will have an opportunity to gain practical experience in hydrodynamic research and the techniques of model testing of ship and flying boat hulls. He will work as a regular member of the Towing Tank staff on actual research programs.

Legislation to authorize the arming of American Merchant ships in times of national emergency passed the Senate recently, and now goes to the House. Such arming would not take place until the President declared such an emergency to exist.

The Office of Trial Examiners of the Maritime Commission recently was directed by the Commission to prepare a recommended decision with respect to the application of the American President Lines to operate, without subsidy, a service between Atlantic Coast ports of the United States and Straits Settlements.

As informal hearings on the application were concluded, Examiner C. W. Robinson made it clear that the question of oral argument and the filing of briefs, or whether a proposed report is to be issued in the matter, would be subject to later determination by the Maritime Commission. The Commission in notices served upon all parties of record in the proceeding, stated that no briefs are to be submitted.

Col. Chennault Honored

Great Falls AFB, Mont.—Col. John S. Chennault, Commanding Officer at Great Falls, has been awarded the Legion of Merit in recognition of meritorious services as Commanding Officer of the 311th Fighter Group in China where the colonel's groups "put to rout over four divisions of Japanese forces west of Honan" from February to June of 1945. The presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Eastern Pacific Wing Commander, during a recent visit here.

Disability Retirement Plans

Contrary to a report that a bill, based on the recent disability hearings before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services, would not be introduced during the present Congress, it has been learned that the hearings are being printed and a report is being formulated for presentation, with recommendations, to the full committee. It is understood that the report will not be ready for about two weeks.
